Lindberghs At Halifax on Voyage Over Arctic Route

Crowds and Water Craft Welcome Fliers in Nova Scotia.

Couple May Greet Balbo Air Armada

Colonel Makes Ready for Quick Departure for Newfoundland.

Halifax, N. S., July 11 (A.P.).—Bound north over the air trails, the flying Lindberghs halted tonight in this port.

Bright sunlight sparkled on the harbor and a brisk southeast wind was blowing as the black-barreled, red-winged monoplane settled on its white pontoons and taxied to a mooring at the Royal Canadian Air Force base, at Eastern Passage.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife arrived at 5:50 p. m., Atlantic standard time (4:50 p. m., Eastern standard time), two hours and 36 minutes after leaving North Haven, Me., their first stop on an aerial route survey to Greenland.

"It was a very nice trip," said the transatlantic airman's petite wife and flying companion as small craft of every description clustered around their seaplane even before it was moored.

Expected Hop Today.

Neither would go into any details about their plans. They were expected to leave tomorrow for Newfoundland, or possibly for Cartwright, Labrador.

"Every one else seems to know more about this trip than we do," Col. Lindbergh said, laughing, as he came ashore. "As a matter of fact, we have no definite schedule. I can't say for sure when we will take off, but we are spending the night here anyway."

The flier, after a few minutes' rest, went back aboard the plane to supervise refueling operations and the work began of pouring 1,200 gallons of gasoline into the craft's capacious tanks. Col. Lindbergh was insistent that everything be made ready tonight for their departure.

"We'd like to get clearance papers now," he told Collector of Customs W. C. Acker.

May Greet Italians.

If the Lindberghs press on to Cartwright it was generally expected they would greet the Chicago-bound Italian armada there.

The quiet cove took on all the features of a regatta, with motor boats ranging from the humble outboard to the club cruiser and sailing boats boasting every rig from leg o' mutton to schooner.

Hundreds of persons crowded the shore from Halifax and nearby towns. Anne Lindbergh raised a hand in greeting and laughed. She wore high boots, suede breeches and a buff sweater and her dark hair was framed in a white flying helmet. Meanwhile, her husband attended to the job of making their plane fast.

The crowd pressed around, though with great decorum, and every one had a laugh when a 5-year-old perched on a piling shouted, "Hi, Lindy!"

Robert Dunsmore, oil company official, stood on a pontoon and talked with Col. Lindbergh before he went ashore to be greeted by United States Consul General George E. Chamberlain and other consulate officials and Geoffrey Harrison, of the Halifax Flying Club.

Retired by Army

MAJ. CHARLES D. DALY

Army to Retire Maj. C. D. Daly, Football Star

Hero of Harvard's Grid History Is Declared Physically Disabled.

By Harris B. Hull.

Maj. Charles D. Daly, whose athletic achievements are legend at the Military Academy at West Point and at Harvard, is to be retired from the Army, the generals decreed yesterday at the War Department.

And the irony of it is that the man who was one of the greatest quarter backs ever developed in America, three times an all-American, who coached West Point versity squads for eight years and Harvard for almost as many, will leave the Military Service for a physical disability.

Daly was born in Boston in 1880. He will leave the Army as a colonel, the highest war-time rank he held.

Like any good son of Boston, Daly went to Harvard, getting an A. B. there in 1901. He played and loved football in a way that made many a good Bostonian holler a lot louder than they would want to admit they had hollered at any football game. You can still hear the sophomores at Harvard tell of his great exploits on the gridiron against the Crimson's traditional foes, Princeton and Yale.

But three years of football wasn't enough. He wanted more and he liked the idea of a military life. So he entered West Point and there, too, the third classmen educate the plebes on the accomplishments of the Great Daly, who practically single-handed turned back the entire fleet of the Navy and won football game after football game.

In 1910 he resigned his commission from the Army and was through with football, he thought. He became fire commissioner of the City of Boston.

And just as those stories about his 90-yard runs are indelibly written through the Crimson history of Harvard and the drab gray history of West Point, so the stories of his exploits directing the good fire marshals of Boston where to point the hose are still told in Boston with an enthusiasm uncommon to Bostonians.

But the Army claimed him back and by special act of Congress March 5, 1913, he was reinstated in the Field Artillery. He went through the various grades, serving at a score of posts. And everywhere he went he coached and played football with the soldiers and the officers alike. His fame spread rapidly and in 1913 he was recalled to West Point, where he coached until 1922.

He was organizer and first president of the American Football Coaches Association. He also served as a member of the intercollegiate football rules committee, and he wrote a book on football entitled "American Football."

Alleged Auto Thief Shot by Car Owner

Assailant, Scantily Clad, Wounds Man After Chase in Street.

A man identified as Darwin Corso, 529 Quincy street northwest, was in a serious condition early today in Emergency Hospital from a bullet wound in his back which pierced his right lung.

He was shot by James W. Wyke, 28, of 1444 W street northwest, who said he caught the man stripping his automobile in the rear of his house. Corso was shot as he raced across W street by Wyke, who was pursuing him dressed only in his underwear and trousers.

After the shooting, Wyke hailed a taxicab and rushed Corso to Emergency Hospital. The shooting was witnessed by several persons, aroused from sleep by the commotion.

Wyke remained at the hospital while Corso was being treated, and until police arrived. Later he was taken to the Third Precinct Station, where he was booked for investigation pending further developments in the case.

Power of U. S. Mobilized to Check Rising Kidnap Wave

3 Prominent Persons Still Missing, Two Known Stolen.

O'Connell Thought Victim of Revenge

Factor Ransom Demand Called Genuine; New Laws Are Sought.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Government yesterday threw its power and resources into the search for kidnaped citizens, and new legislation was suggested to curb the wave of abductions over the country.

Three persons, all prominent in their communities, were missing. Two were definitely known to have been victims of kidnapers and authorities were searching for the other on the theory he also was the victim of abductors. A fourth was at his home, released after seizure by three escaped convicts.

The missing were:

John J. (Butch) O'Connell, 24, nephew of prominent Albany (N. Y.) politicians. The abductors asked $250,000 ransom. Kidnaped last Friday.

Aged Banker Kidnaped.

August Luer, aged and invalid banker, of Alton, Ill., no ransom demand received. Kidnaped Monday night.

John Factor, Chicago market speculator, and reputed millionaire, missing since July 1, when he reportedly was abducted by two carloads of armed hoodlums.

John C. Lyle, a Crawfordville, Ga., rural mail carrier was released Monday night after being abducted by a trio of fleeing Georgia convicts.

Marian Buckley, missing Cleveland co-ed, has written a letter to her family saying she is well and has a job with a good family, ner mother, Mrs. H. M. Buckley, announced in Wilmington, Ohio, last night.

Mrs. Buckley said that her daughter, for whom a wide search has been conducted in Ohio and Kentucky, sent the letter to her home in Cleveland and it was opened by a neighbor, Mrs. Charles Singletary, who had been instructed to forward mail to Mrs. Buckley.

The postmark of the letter was obscured.

Revenge was advanced yesterday as a motive for the kidnaping of the 24-year-old nephew of Ed and Dan O'Connell, Democratic leaders, as the Albany family resumed negotiations with kidnapers after a silence of 48 hours.

Hope for the safety of the athletic John J. O'Connell, jr., and his early release was revived at the anxious homes of his parents and his uncles when a note was received from the abductors. It reiterated a demand for $250,000 and demanded a new list of go-betweens. The new list, in code, like the first group of suggested intermediaries, was carried in a local newspaper. The caption of the classified ad, as was the first one last Sunday morning, was the word "Sedgewick."

Factor Ransom Demands.

Federal authorities and police last night said they had information that two ransom demands—one for $250,000 and the other for $200,000—for the release of the missing John Factor had been received. They said Factor's close friends regarded the demands as authentic.

Police quoted friends of Factor as saying that two days after the kidnaping, a ransom demand for $250,000 was made. Monday, they said, a demand for $200,000 was made.

The initial demand, police said, at first was believed the work of a crank, but when the second demand, apparently from the same person, was made, Factor's friends decided they were genuine.

Accompanying the second demand, it was understood by police,

Balbo's Flight Delayed; Unable to Lift Plane

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 11 (A.P.).—After an unsuccessful attempt of Gen. Italo Balbo, the leader, to lift his ship from the bay, the flight of 24 Italian seaplanes en route to Chicago was postponed today. It was thought probable the postponement was due to trouble with the gasoline supply.

Gen. Balbo, who earlier had ordered his companions to be ready for a take-off, returned to the landing buoy after he had failed to get his plane up. The next stage of the trip is to Cartwright, Labrador, a hop of 1,500 miles.

Officials Deny Jupiter Voided His Confession

Retraction Report Spread After Alleged Slayer Escapes Lynching.

A retraction of the confession of Page Jupiter, alleged slayer of a Waldorf farm woman, is reliably reported to have been made yesterday by the 42-year-old farm hand a few minutes before he was sped to the security of the Baltimore City Jail.

This report was instantly denied by State's Attorney Edward J. Edelen, who attended the secret hearing in La Plata at which the alleged slayer is reported to have denied responsibility for the ax slaying.

The recantation is reported to have been made by the colored man while the formal hearing on the murder charge was being held in the home of Justice of the Peace R. H. Lee Reich, who also denied the report.

Only 14 hours earlier, he had been spirited from a mob of infuriated farmers, who tried to wrest him from the La Plata Jail, but were frustrated by Maryland State police.

Shunted from Upper Marlboro to La Plata for a formal hearing on a charge of murdering Mrs. Evelyn Reifschneider, the prisoner was zealously guarded by a detail of 14 Maryland State policemen, who took him to Baltimore. They carried tear gas to repel any attempt to kidnap the prisoner.

The man, alleged to have slaughtered the farm woman with a pole-ax on her farm near Waldorf, Md., is being held for the action of the grand jury, scheduled to convene in November, but which may be called at an earlier date.

One of the men who was arrested just before an attempt was made to spirit Jupiter from the two-story red brick jail at La Plata was fined $10 yesterday by Justice of the Peace Reich. Before he went into the jail he had driven over a curbstone. This resulted in a reckless driving charge being placed against him. He is Herbert Collins, of Waldorf, Md. His companion was freed by the mob which stormed the jail after its quarry had been whisked away.

A heavy cordon of Maryland State policemen under Lieut. Ruxton Ridgely and Sergt. Louis Bloom brought Jupiter from his temporary refuge in Upper Marlboro to the home of Justice of the Peace Reich in La Plata. There the hearing on the murder charge was held. The evidence against Jupiter was presented by Sergt. Bloom and Sheriff R. Vernon Cooksey, who told of the confession made by the farmhand. In this, they said, he admitted that he killed the woman at her request. The woman, he had confessed, asked him to strike her with the ax when he declared that he was going to leave the farm. Rather than till the tract alone, Jupiter confessed, the woman asked that she be killed.

Circuit Court Judge W Mitchell Diggs said yesterday that "it is possible that the grand jury may be called in special session to hear the

President Names High Council To Hasten Draft of All Codes; Vast Work Projects Approved

Former City Manager of Dayton Named to Assist Ickes.

Cabinet Board's Action Goes to Roosevelt Immediately.

(Associated Press.)

Federal construction projects aggregating roughly $200,000,000 were approved by the Cabinet board in charge of the public works program yesterday and immediately submitted to President Roosevelt.

Among the other developments in the administration's effort to get the job-providing public works program into operation were:

Appointment of Col. H. M. Waite former city manager of Dayton, as deputy administrator of public works, directly under Secretary Ickes, the administrator.

Approval of plans for expenditure of almost $50,000,000 for roads in New York, Massachusetts, Ohio and Utah.

Appointment of a subcommittee to divide $50,000,000 among public parks, national forests and Indian reservations for roads.

Announcement that the Cabinet board would meet again today to consider a big batch of municipal projects already approved by Reconstruction Corporation engineers.

An assertion by Ickes that there is no "inside track" to public works contracts, but that they will be awarded to "those able to do the best job for the least money in an honest way."

Cabinet Board Approves.

The Federal public works program was approved by the Cabinet board at a three-hour session in which the recommendations of a subcommittee for projects totaling about $400,000,000 were scrutinized and pared down.

Secretary Ickes, who, as chairman of the board and administrator, has become commander in chief of the public works campaign against unemployment, said the specific projects approved by the board would not be announced until approved by the White House. He said he hoped that would be immediately.

Ickes declined to give any indication of the nature of the projects approved or the exact amount involved. The estimate of $200,000,000 came from his associates.

He explained that the projects eliminated from the program had not been rejected, but that action on them had been deferred until a future time.

Waite, upon whose shoulders the burden of the administrative work will fall, has been temporarily acting as asistant administrator. He was city manager of Dayton, Ohio, from 1914 to 1918 and has had long experience in municipal administration, engineering, transportation and industry.

Approval of plans for road expenditures in the four States will start construction activities which are estimated to provide 1,367,055 man-weeks of work on a 30-hour week basis.

Ickes and Secretary Wallace approved a plan submitted by Massachusetts for expending 26.9 per cent of that State's $6,597,100 allotment on the Federal Aid Highway sys-

Exiled Maharajah Greeted in London

All Leather Removed From Car Out of Respect to His Religion.

London, July 11 (A.P.).—The Maharajah of Alwar, exiled for two years from his own realm, on instructions of Lord Willingdon, viceroy of India, arrived in London today. On his last visit here he headed a delegation of Indian princes to the round-table conference.

The dispute between the maharajah and the viceroy has aroused intense interest here, where it was recalled Alwar led all the states in recruiting at the beginning of the great war. The maharajah maintains two regiments of infantry and one garrison force, both of which served in the war. He is a colonel in the British army.

The order of exile arose from agrarian unrest in Alwar State.

The maharajah declined to make any statement when he arrived at Dover with a retinue of 16, where he was greeted by the lord mayor and the mayoress. He traveled to London in a big private car from which all leather had been removed, his religion forbidding any contact with leather.

Col. Henry M. Waite Is Named Construction Program Guide

Former City Manager of Dayton Will Bear Major Part of Responsibility for Success of $3,300,000,000 Projects.

(Associated Press.)

Much of the responsibility for properly administering the Government's $3,300,000,000 construction program will fall upon Col. Henry M. Waite, who was selected today by Secretary Ickes as deputy public works administrator.

Although Ickes holds the title of public works administrator, Mr. Waite's duties in the public works administration will parallel those of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in the administration of the industrial recovery law.

A quiet but determined man of 64, Waite first came into national prominence as city manager of Dayton, Ohio, back in 1914, when that form of municipal rule was an experiment and was carefully watched throughout the country.

His most recent achievement was the construction of Cincinnati's union depot, completed this year.

In between, Waite has been engaged in municipal administration, engineering, transportation, business and military service.

He is a grandson of Morrison R. Waite, a former Chief Justice of the United States, and was born at Toledo, May 15, 1869.

Educated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he spent the next few years at railroading and coal mining before going to Cincinnati as chief engineer of the U. S. Workers Fear Further Job Slashing

Many Policies Perplex Employes as Merit System Is Ignored.

By Robert C. Albright.

Personnel policies as diverse as the number of new Federal establishments and Government departments in Washington were being pursued yesterday, as the first fortnight of the new fiscal year neared a close without clarifying directions from the White House.

Despite vague reassurances offered old line employes, all but one of the new emergency establishments continued to hire workers without regard to the merit system. Retrenchment policies rigorously followed in most departments presaged the release of another large group of employes Saturday.

"The outlook for the reemployment of ousted Government employes continues to be far from encouraging," read a statement issued last night by the new Civil Service Reinstatement League, organized to put back to work competent Federal personnel squeezed out by economy pressure.

Developments yesterday were:

The Public Works Administration approved and sent to the President about $200,000,000 in public works projects, but declined to say whether departmental requests, designed to aid Federal reemployment, were included.

Secretary of Interior Ickes said the primary purpose of the program is to put labor to work throughout the country as a whole, indicating projects approved yesterday were not particularly designed to relieve Federal unemployment in Washington.

Labor affiliated Federal employe organizations turned over to President William Green of the American Federation of Labor data on separations to carry to the White House. The President will be asked to intercede in behalf of workers being let out and to clarify the situation through a statement of policy. No date for the White House appeal had been fixed last night. J. P. Simpson and John Arthur Shaw, of the American Federation of Government Employes, will accompany Mr. Green.

A mass march to the White House was asked by the Communist party of the United States in circulars distributed through the Government departments yesterday. Making ammunition of the 15 per cent Government pay cut, widespread payless furloughs and the dismissal of some 4,000 Washington depart-

Cotton Program Collapse Feared

(United Press.)

Cotton producers must agree by midnight today to take a part of their present yield out of production or face results of collapse of the administration's crop reduction plan.

This warning was issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday as the agriculture adjustment administration was confronted by a series of crucial tests on its vast experimental program.

Wallace's notice came on the heels of reports that but little acreage had been pledged to destruction since Saturday when elimination of 5,566,169 acres had been promised. A goal of 10,000,000 acres or one-fourth the entire crop had been tentatively fixed.

Beer Is Voted In Oklahoma; Troops Called

Murray Acts to Prevent Premature Imbibing After 2-1 Victory.

Oklahoma City, July 11 (A.P.).—Oklahoma, bone dry since being admitted to Statehood, voted today to have its beer, but Gov. William H. Murray called out the national guard tonight to prevent premature celebrating in Oklahoma City.

As returns from today's special election indicated a majority of nearly 2 to 1 for legalization of beer, the governor ordered troops into the railroad yards here to guard approximately 50 freight cars of the 3.2 per cent brew.

He declared he would not permit the cars to be opened until he issues a proclamation that beer has been legalized. He declined to say when he would issue the proclamation.

The cars have been in the yards several days under diversion orders of the shippers.

The latest tabulation, covering 2,379 precincts out of a total of 3,313, gave: For beer, 182,897; against, 103,390.

The Daily Oklahoman estimated beer had been legalized by a majority of 100,000.

While the beer verdict was being written, sheriff's officers at Guymon seized a 10-truck fleet carrying 2,300 cases of beer, which entered the State from Trinidad, Colo. The truckers asserted it was an interstate shipment to Louisiana, and officers said it might proceed if the Oklahoma beer bill passes.

Western Oklahoma returned the heaviest dry vote, several counties saying definitely they wanted no beer. The Seventh Congressional District, in the southwest, apparently voted dry.

Jackson and Harmon Counties, in the southwestern corner on the Texas line, were among those casting a negative vote. Jackson County, with its complete vote totaled, went dry, 2,744 to 1,932. Harmon County, incomplete, voted against beer by nearly 3 to 1.

In the opposite corner of the State, the northeastern counties, near wet Missouri, voted heavily for the amber beverage. Ottawa,

Slaying Hinted as Girl's Body Is Found in River

Wilmington, Del., July 11 (A.P.).—State police said today that they believe the unclad body of a woman found in the Delaware River off Wilmington yesterday is that of a murder victim.

Lieut. Earle Cole, of the State police, who said he had been in communication with police in New York and Pennsylvania, believed the description corresponded with that of Pauline Bennett, said to be missing from her parents' farm at Vesta, N. Y., since May 7.

While the body was somewhat decomposed, it is described as that of a woman about 19 years old, with blue eyes, and red hair. The upper teeth are missing.

Steel and Oil Industries Next on List for Adjustment.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

President Roosevelt yesterday created the Nation's greatest peacetime general staff to direct the war against depression, bringing into a new executive council every governmental agency charged with a part in the recovery program.

The full pressure of this "supercabinet" will be put behind plans of individual recovery agencies to force a speeding up of industrial and business life throughout the country.

At the same time Secretary Roper of the Commerce Department, issued a warning that punitive steps would be taken, if necessary, to hasten the submitting of codes.

One new industrial code, that of the lumber industry, was submitted to the National Industrial Recovery Administration yesterday. Another, steel, is to be presented today. A code for the oil industry is expected soon.

A definite time limit by the expiration of which industries must submit recovery codes may be announced within a day or so by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

General Code Studied.

Announcement of a general code for all industries, prescribing minimum wages and maximum working hours for industry generally has been proposed and is under study. Such a procedure has been suggested by the joint meeting of the three recovery administration advisory councils representing industry, labor and consumer.

Ways and means of making some such plan effective also are under consideration. Gen. Johnson said he is studying the legal phases of the recovery act to see if it would be possible to enforce a wide-embracing code without necessity for a myriad public hearings. The law authorizes the President to prescribe a code for an industry, but also provides that the affected industry must be given a public hearing on its provisions.

Johnson Stresses Speed.

The same practical difficulties would not confront the administration, however, if it chose to single out certain of the largest "key" industries and prescribe a code. Gen. Johnson was asked if he would do such a thing.

"I certainly would," he replied, "if I have any reason to believe they are not coming forward as readily as they can. The speed with which the cotton textile code was put through makes the others look slower than they really are. The cotton people were 'sooners' along the Cherokee strip. They were at work weeks before the law passed."

But, the general said, "the Government is not going to try to run industries. It won't do it."

Creation of the new executive council came at a time when administration officials were frankly becoming worried over the delay in industries coming forward with offers to increase employment and wages. They are fearful that increased production and increased prices will prove too heavy a burden because industry has failed to increase purchasing power by increasing employment through shorter work hours and higher wages.

Personnel of the new council includes the President and the Cabinet; Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget; Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration; William F. Stevenson, chairman of the board of the Home Owners Loan Corporation; Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator; George N. Peek, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment act; Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator; Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority; Joseph Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation, and Robert Fechner, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

High Council To Rush Draft Of All Codes

From time to time others will be invited to take part in the council meetings, the White House said. The council is superimposed on other interdepartmental boards which previously had been appointed. Secretary of Interior Ickes is chairman of the public works board and Secretary of Commerce Roper is chairman of the industrial board. Both are members of the executive council.

Frank C. Walker, of New York, treasurer of the Democratic national committee and a friend of the President, was appointed executive secretary. He probably will have offices in the Treasury although he will not be a part of that department.

Through him will be cleared the work of focusing the activities of the various agencies. The two-hour meeting with the President yesterday, Mr. Walker said, was devoted largely to a general discussion.

The council, however, got its first taste of what is in store for it when Gen. Johnson laid before the meeting some of the most pressing of the diverse problems confronting the recovery administration.

Returning to his own offices in the Commerce Building, Gen. Johnson told newspapermen that the code submitted by the lumber industry contained several objectionable features. The code provided for a work week of 40 to 48 hours.

"A 48-hour work week is so long I wouldn't even consider it," he said.

Discusses Wages.

Discussing proposed minimum wages, the recovery administrator said that the lumber industry was entitled to try to make out a case for whatever it believed was justified.

"But," he added, "roughly, 22½ cents an hour is far below what I consider the necessary minimum wage—if we're going to get anywhere toward recovery."

The code wages vary with regions and kinds of work and range up to 45 cents an hour. Some of the scales, Gen. Johnson said, "are wholly unacceptable and will in no case be approved."

Control of production and prices also is provided for in the code. It is the first submitted with such provisions, which are urged in the name of conservation of the natural forest resources of the nation. John D. Tennant, chairman of the emergency national committee of the industry, estimated the code would mean a substantial increase in employment, and, on the basis of anticipated August production, would mean $10,000,000 increase in wages that month.

Public hearings on the code were fixed to begin on July 20. It will be the second recovery hearing.

Steel Code Due Today.

The steel code expected today will embrace 90 to 95 per cent of the total tonnage of the industry it is estimated. Seven days notice is expected before public hearings are to begin on it.

Bituminous operators representing mining in fourteen States and labor leaders continued yesterday their efforts to work out a code for that industry. Progress was reported but there seemed no prospect of getting together on the question of hours of labor.

Labor, led by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, insisted on a six-hour day, five-day week.

The operators, led by T. G. Essington, of the Illinois Coal Operators Association, wanted an eight-hour day with a thirty-six-hour average week. This average would be obtained by working a forty-hour week for six months and thirty-two hours a week for the other six months a year.

Another widespread industry expected to submit codes soon, is the oil industry. There is a divergence of opinion among oil producers and it is probable that codes submitted by various groups will be considered at the same public hearing.

Roper Sounds Warning.

Secretary Roper, in a radio address broadcast over a national hook-up, appealed to industry to hasten the drafting and submission of codes. He coupled with his appeal a warning that punitive steps would be taken if voluntary response was not had.

"We prefer," the Secretary said, "to rely upon the patriotism and inherent decency of the members of each industry than upon threats of penalties or secret policing.

"Beyond the self-governing pressure within the industry itself is the enormous force of public opinion—stronger than any regulation—stronger than any law. We believe the American ideal of fair play and good sportsmanship will preserve its integrity.

"Should events prove us wrong in this belief, the strictly statutory penalty provisions can then be called into operation.

"This law signalizes the advent of national economic and industrial planning for the United States. The result should be intelligently planned and controlled expansion and progress in our commercial and industrial economy. We shall prevent repetitions of tragic waste and losses suffered from the haphazard development of the past."

British Watch Chinese Warships at Hongkong

Hongkong, China, July 11 (A.P.).—Three Chinese warships, the Yatsen, the Haiyung and the Haichau, arrived today from the north and anchored in Castle Peak Bay, in Hongkong waters.

The British destroyer Wishart watched the boats. They presumably were pursuing three mutinous vessels which took refuge in the Canton River.

D. C. Shriners Liven Conclave At Atlantic City

50,000 Nobles Attending National Meeting at Seashore.

Special to The Washington Post.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 11.—Uniformed nobles, of Almas Temple, came from Washington last night, sniffed the sea air and this morning took the mammoth parade of the North American Convocation of Shriners by storm. Fifteen thousand nobles from all parts of the country were in the line of march.

Sixty of the Almas brethren, in brilliant Turkish uniforms of red silk pantaloons, blue embroidered jackets, up-pointed shoes and red fezzes, made up the patrol unit of crack drillmen, marching, wheeling and counter-marching in intricate evolutions that won storms of applause from spectators in the huge municipal auditorium where the parade climaxed.

Forty others in the Almas band alternated with 10 of their Washington brothers in a special oriental band, in setting watchers' feet to dancing along the Boardwalk line of march and in the convention hall.

Twenty others, war veterans, made up the delegation from the Almas Temple Legion of Honor, in chromium steel trench helmets and dark blue military uniforms.

Warren W. Grimes, potentate, led the line of officers. With him were Will Miller, chief rabban; Robert Smith, assistant rabban; Allen Potts, high priest and prophet, and three imperial council representatives, James G. Hoyle, Leonard P. Steuart and E. D. Anderson.

The imperial delegates last named will take part tomorrow in the session which chooses new officers for the imperial divan of the entire North American jurisdiction, and decides also upon the city in which the 1934 session is to be held.

tem; 63.9 per cent on extensions of the system into and through municipalities, and 9.2 per cent for secondary or feeder roads. Although funds will be expended in eleven of the fourteen counties in the State.

Ohio's program for spending an allotment of $15,484,592 contemplates the use of 45 per cent on the Federal Aid system, 30 per cent on extensions and 25 per cent on secondary or feeder roads, with improvements in all 88 counties.

Utah's approved schedule calls for expenditure of 50 per cent of an allotment of $4,194,708 on the Federal Aid system, 25 per cent on extensions and 25 per cent on secondary or feeder roads with all but three of the 29 counties involved.

The allocation for New York had been previously announced.

Roper Heads Groups.

Secretary Roper was named chairman of a subcommittee to divide the $50,000,000 allotted by Congress to roads in public parks, national forests and Indian reservations. Other members of the committee, which will meet today, were Assistant Secretary of Labor Battle and Solicitor General Biggs.

Another subcommittee is studying a batch of projects transmitted to the Public Works Administration by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which have been approved by engineers of that organization. Many of them are projects that were not eligible to Federal aid under the old law. The board will meet again today to receive and consider a report from this subcommittee.

Ickes in announcing there was no "inside track" to public works contracts, said:

"Since enactment of the public works law there has sprung up in Washington a rapidly increasing corps of self-styled 'experts', 'agents' and 'advisors', who are attempting to get money from contractors in exchange for alleged inside information and influence.

"Some persons are even proclaiming they can 'deliver' profitable contracts in return for advance payments. They can do no such thing."

Ickes advised contractors not to waste money on these people, but to give the Government the benefit of low bids and advised them they would probably be disappointed if they wasted money on these so-called advisors.

Airline Travel Gain Forces Double Tracks

Millions of Dollars Put Into New Equipment to Get Business.

Chicago, July 11 (A.P.).—The skyways of the Nation are being "double tracked."

A survey of major air lines carrying passengers to every corner of America—and one of them planning to extend across the ocean—showed tonight that commercial aviation has increased its passenger income by one-third in recent weeks.

The reason: Renewed activity in general business and loss of what aviation men call "air anxiety" by the public.

The result: A battle for the new business comparable to that of the railroads several decades ago.

Scrap Many Planes.

In the scramble for passengers, millions of dollars have been spent for new equipment. Fleets of planes are being virtually scrapped in favor of faster ones. One line contemplates spending $4,000,000 for new ships.

Planes carrying ten passengers at three miles a minute in sound-proof cabins have been evolved by United Air Lines. American airways has responded with ships in which passengers can sleep on comfortable berths during night trips between Chicago and the Pacific Coast.

Northwest Airways has ordered a fleet of planes capable of 215 miles an hour with a cruising speed of 180 and announced a plan to compete for business between Chicago and the Pacific Northwest.

100 Per Cent Gain.

As proof of increasing business, the municipal airport here announced tonight that 6,927 passengers were carried out of Chicago on regularly scheduled trips during June, an increase of 100 per cent from a year ago.

Trips between New York and Chicago have been doubled by three lines. A traveler between the two cities now has a choice of more than 200 planes daily.

The increased passenger business has little more than replaced the 25 per cent cut in Federal payments for carrying the mail.

Lynch Mob Foiled By Baltimore Jail

case. I intend first to talk with the associate judges. My opinion is that the case will go over to the November term."

Hardly had the hearing in the home of Justice of the Peace Reich been concluded, when the fourteen State policemen formed about Jupiter, and guarded him on the way to Baltimore. There were no attempts to take the prisoner, because of the secrecy which shrouded their movements.

The shifting of the prisoner to Baltimore was decided upon when Sheriff W. Curtis Hopkins advised Charles County officials that the Upper Marlboro Jail was no more invulnerable than the La Plata Jail, which was successfully stormed on Monday night.

Confession Reiterated.

At the hearing, Justice of the Peace Reich, said Jupiter frankly admitted his guilt and reiterated his confession. After the hearing the prisoner was committed to the custody of Sheriff Cooksey, who had him removed to Baltimore.

The mob, carrying sledge hammers to crash the doors and equipped with ropes and gasoline to hang and burn the prisoner, employed a ruse to gain entrance to the jail. Two men drove up in an automobile. As they reached the lock-up they were confronted with State policemen and deputy sheriff, who were secreted in the darkened courthouse.

One pretended he was drunk. The other, who was unknown to the colored keeper, John F. Dorsey, feigned he was a deputy sheriff. The presence of the State policemen spoiled their plans. Both of them were placed in jail. Then a mob of 100 stormed across the courthouse lawn.

Slayer Whisked Away.

Just as they came within grabbing distance, the manacled prisoner was whisked out of the jail doors. His guards hurried him over a double railed fence and he was shoved into a car, while State policemen stood ready to repulse the mob with tear gas.

Then the car carrying the prisoner sped toward Marlboro. The mob rushed past the aged doorkeeper, milling about the two floors of the jail yelling for the prisoner. Then, realizing they had been foiled, they started to the courthouse and surged through the offices, demanding the prisoner.

The mob dispersed a few hours later after an unsuccessful attempt to ascertain the whereabouts of the prisoner.

Parley Marks Time Awaiting Dollar's Trend

Secondary Topics to Keep Meeting Alive Until Stabilization.

London, July 11 (A.P.).—The World Economic Conference today decided to wait for action on the American dollar.

After a fortnight of bitter controversy, the conference found itself back where it was when the clash of the gold and nongold groups disrupted it a fortnight ago, save for this vital difference—the gold representatives no longer were threatening to wreck the conference.

The most vital monetary problems still were as far from solution as previously, but the opposing groups agreed to drop all dangerously contentious subjects and proceed on a few mostly secondary topics in the hope the conference could be kept alive until the dollar quiets down and real steps may be taken to bring out order in the world currency situation.

The question of adjournment was said not to have been mentioned in the day's committee meetings, but important conference circles were inclined to agree that the present schedule would be completed in two or three weeks.

Some thought the conference might then recess until September or later if currency stabilization still seemed well in the future.

The special drafting committee of the monetary commission, on which the gold and nongroup countries were equally represented, drew up a resolution at a morning session which was quickly accepted in a 5-minute meeting of the big steering committee in the afternoon.

A recommendation said that monetary subcommission No. 1, dealing with temporary measures, "should proceed in the first instance to discussion of the subject of indebtedness." (Although war debts were not included in the agenda of the conference, international commercial debts were mentioned.)

Subcommission No. 2, the recommendation declared, "should take up resolutions already adopted by its subcommittees on central banking cooperation and on creation of central banks in certain countries where they do not exist, and should pursue through its subcommittees examination of the question of silver and any other subject on its agenda which may by general agreement be considered suitable for discussion."

The second subcommission was formed to consider permanent measures.

While some gold group quarters were inclined to regard the agreement as a victory for their cause, the Americans found the resolution satisfactory inasmuch as it removed stabilization, which the United States was not yet ready to consider, and left silver, in which the American delegation is keenly interested.

U. S. to Settle Dispute Over Miners' Hours

Coal Operators Announce Failure to Reach Code Agreement.

That the Industrial Recovery Administration will be called upon to settle the 30-hour week controversy for the coal industry became apparent yesterday as operators in 14 bituminous-producing States refused to agree to less than an eight-hour day with an average minimum week of 36 hours.

All other issues affecting working conditions of miners were agreed to in principle by the operators following an all-day session here with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and other representatives of mine labor.

Spokesmen for both sides admitted that the outcome of the fight over hours of labor rested with the Recovery Administration.

A code for that part of the industry represented at yesterday's meeting is to be prepared with regulations governing hours of labor omitted and presented the administration in the near future. The points agreed upon include a basic wage scale of $5 a day for underground workers and $4 a day for outside labor, abolition of deductions from pay for living quarters and food as well as the practice of compelling workers to occupy company houses, payment in cash or by check and determination of pay for piece-workers by weight of coal mined rather than by measure.

The mine union insists upon a 5-hour day and a 6-day week as against the operator's proposal for an 8-hour day with a 32-hour week in those months of the year when production is normally slack, and with a 40-hour week during busier months, making an average week of 36 hours in a year's time.

The principle of a wage differential depending upon living standards in various sections of the country also has been agreed upon, according to T. G. Essington, of Chicago, counsel for the Illinois coal operators and chairman of the conference.

were statements concerning Factor's brokerage accounts, and police said they were told that even the family regarded the demand as authentic.

Federal operatives from the Department of Justice already are working on the O'Connell and Factor cases and it appeared likely they would give aid in the other investigations.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, chairman of a committee to investigate racketeering for the Senate, conferred here with the Attorney General and Joseph B. Keenan, an assistant Attorney General in charge of the Federal war on gangdom.

Present laws permit the Federal Government to intervene in abductions only if victims are carried across State lines, or if threatening letters for ransom demands are sent through the mails or if the crime is committed on Government property. Federal laws were suggested to control possession of machine guns and sawed-off shotguns and against carrying concealed weapons.

Four Arrested In Attempted Kidnaping Plot

Suffolk Police Frustrate Plan to Spirit Away Virginia Banker.

Suffolk, Va., July 11 (A.P.).—With three men already in widely separated jails, police tonight continued their efforts to spike completely immature plans for what they were "tipped" was a plot to kidnap a wealthy young Franklin, Va., banker, by arresting a fourth man.

Assisted by C. C. Vaughan, 3d, the alleged intended victim, Suffolk and Franklin Police arrested Jack Beale, 32, of Holland, Va., and Detroit; Harvey Norfleet, 45, of Holland, and John R. Wade, 43, of Suffolk.

With these men jailed on charges of attempted kidnaping, the officers tonight arrested Clifton Henry Holland, 36, of Holland, Va. He was held on a charge of being implicated in the conspiracy. Holland was taken into custody at Crittenden, where he was employed in highway work. He was held for a preliminary hearing.

Holland was not with the other three men when they were arrested in a lane leading from a Vaughan family farm, near Blackwater River, and police did not divulge the clew that led them to him at Crittenden.

The other three and an automobile hidden in the bushes were in the vicinity of the route followed by Vaughan on semiweekly horseback trips to the farm.

Police Chief Churn, of Suffolk, said he had been tipped to the plot nearly a month ago, and had informed Vaughan of the plan. Yesterday, Chief Churn said, officers received further information and secured the cooperation of the intended victim. Last night they went to the lane leading to the farm and arrested the men.

Vaughan is a son of the late State Senator C. C. Vaughan, jr., whose father established the Franklin Banking House young Vaughan took over after Senator Vaughan's death in 1929.

Judge James L. McLemore ordered the prisoners separated to prevent them from conferring. Beale was sent to Newport News, Norfleet to Petersburg, and Wade was kept at Franklin.

Rail Brotherhoods Approve Wage Pact

Cleveland, July 11 (A.P.).—The Railway Labor Executives Association announced today that all the interested railway employes had confirmed an agreement to continue the temporary 10 per cent wage reduction placed in effect February 1, 1932. The agreement was tentatively signed in Washington last month by the Labor Association and railway management representatives after the administration had dissuaded the management from a demand for another 12½ per cent reduction beginning this November.

The confirmation by the various brotherhoods and employe classes merely means that the 10 per cent reduction will be continued until June 30, 1934.

Aero Officials To Study Pilots' Status Today

License Cancellations and Turner's Appeal to Be Discussed.

Exciting subjects are on the agenda of the contest committee meeting of the National Aeronautic Association today at 10 a. m.

What shall be done with the pilots who took part in the American air races at Chicago which were not sanctioned by the N. A. A.?

What shall be done about Col. Roscoe Turner's appeal from the decision of the local contest committee in Los Angeles, in which he insists he should be considered winner of the Thompson Trophy race?

Who shall be selected to represent this country in the International Gordon Bennett balloon races, if no national elimination races are held?

And what about the increasing criticism of the N. A. A. by pilots of the country for "high-handed" control of air races and meets?

William P. MacCracken, jr., chairman of the contest committee, said yesterday he anticipated an average meeting, explaining that the widespread location of the members often prevented a large attendance. The meetings are held monthly and the committee numbers 25. Several members live on the West Coast, and some, including Jimmy Doolittle, who is abroad, will find it impossible to attend.

Chicago Report Anticipated.

MacCracken said he had received no report of the participation of fliers in the Chicago races, but that he believed one would be ready for consideration at the meeting. At least one member of the contest committee was in Chicago at the time, and his report is anticipated. Penalty for participation in an unsanctioned meet is a cancellation of the pilot's special contest license for three years.

It was this arbitrary rule of the contest committee that caused the resignation of Amelia Earhart as an officer of the N. A. A., after she had been unable to soften the rule, and have the committee pass on each individual case.

"Three years," she told the committee in her farewell mesage, "is half of the average life of a pilot who makes his living by racing. It is too severe a penalty. Besides, there are circumstances surrounding every case that deserve special consideration."

Such pilots as John Livingston, Art Davis, Harvey Mummert, Mattie Laird, Harold Neuman and Lon Yancey took part in the races promoted by the Chicago Tribune, and they will be disbarred from all N. A. A.-sanctioned meets for three years if the contest committee holds fast to its rules.

Col. Turner describes his appearance as an appeal from the decision of the contest committee in direct charge of the National Air Races at Los Angeles, rather than a protest against the rules or attitude of the committee. By failing to round a pylon in the first lap of the high-speed Thompson race, he was disqualified, although his time was better than any other entrant. He lost first prize of $3,375 as a result of this disqualification.

Eliminations Unlikely.

Economic conditions probably will prevent the staging of a national elimination race to select pilots for the United States balloon in the Gordon Bennett races in Chicago, September 5. Therefore, it will be necessary for the contest committees, as representatives of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, to select America's representatives. Two or three crews will be selected, according to Mr. MacCracken, on the basis of their records in past national and international contests.

Several pilots in Washington have received a mimeographed "round robin" from the "Albatross Flying Club," under a New York postmark, attacking the National Aeronautic Association for its management of aviation affairs. Recipients are urged to join the club, and to appeal to the international association, the F. A. I., to withdraw its sanction from the N. A. A. The letter is signed by an "executive secretary," but no information is available as to the membership or purpose of the club. Frequent mention of Hiram Bingham, former senator from Connecticut, is coupled with "high-hat" "arbitrary" and "high-handed." The letter will probably be discussed at today's meeting.

A routine matter will be the selection of the winner of the Loening Intercollegiate Flying Club competition. For the last two years the Harvard Flying Club has won, and the University of Detroit Club has been second. The cash award of about $500 and the trophy are given for a number of accomplishments, among which total flying time and number of pilots are most important.

Piano Given Children At Tuberculosis Camp

An upright piano which served its owner for many years is starting a new life of harmony at the Children's Health Camp, Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest.

Malcolm McCrone, 5706 Eighth street northwest, donated the instrument to the 50 tubercular boys and girls at the camp, which is sponsored by the Tuberculosis Association. A constant radio listener, Mr. McCrone was at a loss as to the means of disposing of the piano until a friend mentioned the camp.

And now every evening after supper one may hear a group of boys and girls singing in an Upshur street dining room while Miss Rose O'Grady, musical director of the camp, plays familiar airs on the old upright.

Attorneys for Whitehurst, who was arrested a year ago on complaint of Mrs. Nelson, that he had invested money for her on the promise to obtain a $500 monthly income, said he was now employed in the Department of Internal Revenue at Washington.

More Job Cuts By U. S. Feared

mental employes, the Washington local of the Communist party called for a "mass parade and demonstration" in protest.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, at her regular press conference yesterday said some further reduction in personnel will be necessary when the Bureau of Naturalization and Immigration are merged August 10, but that "every effort will be exerted to make savings in the nonpersonnel field." She said she thinks it "only just and fair that competent workers should be reemployed first." The Labor Secretary promised to "iron out inequities" arising out of exemption of new employes of the United States Employes Service from the 15 per cent cut.

White House attaches said last night the President has not signed an executive order "unblanketing" certain employes covered into the civil service under Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations. An order said to affect about 336 employes of the Boureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is reported to be awaiting his signature.

The Civil Service Commission announced it can only investigate to see that efficiency ratings are made according to the regulations on the subject, and that removals in reductions of force are made according to law, but has no authority to review the fairness and equity of efficiency ratings, or to determine the degree of efficiency of an employe.

Comptroller General McCarl ruled that Federal workers on involuntary administrative furloughs may take temporary employment in other governmental agencies without detriment to their furlough status. The decision was rendered in response to a query by the Civil Service Commission.

The agricultural adjustment administration, which is one of the few new emergency set-ups taking on employes released from other departments, has employed several hundred workers from various sources in its new contract records section, it was learned yesterday.

Secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission George B. McGinty announced that about 100 of the 613 employes his agency recently placed on indefinite furloughs, have been absorbed into other Government establishments.

The winner of this contest, besides receiving a complete wardrobe, will be given a trip through the South and a trip to Atlantic City as rewards.

Mrs. Curtis' Stable Ruled a Business

Board of Tax Appeals Permits Deduction of Racing Losses.

Mrs. Laura M. Curtis, Washington and New York society leader, won a victory yesterday when the United States Board of Tax Appeals reversed a decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and permitted her, in computing her income tax, to deduct her racing losses from her gross income. These losses amounted to more than $5,000.

By this decision, it was established that Mrs. Curtis' racing ventures were a "business," while the Commissioner of Internal Revenue had held that she raised and raced her horses for pleasure or social prestige.

She was penalized for having failed to report $1,000 of the earnings from her horses. This was deducted from her losses, and she was taxed for it.

Mrs. Curtis is no longer in the racing business. She gave it up and gave away her colts in 1929.

Oklahoma Troops Out in Beer Vote

Washington and Tulsa Counties piled up substantial beer majorities. Ottawa County gave beer nearly a 4 to 1 verdict and Tulsa County was equally as decisive.

Oklahoma County said it wanted beer by a 3 to 1 vote, Muskogee County gave about the same decision and Bryan, Carter, Canadian, Creek, Grady, Okmulgee, Pittsburg, and Rogers counties favored beer by heavy majorities.

In the Western area, Harper, Washita, Alfalfa, Grant, Kiowa, Custer and Woods counties apparently were in the dry column. Garfield County showed a close vote, with the result in doubt.

Cleveland County, home of the University of Oklahoma, returned a close vote with beer slightly favored.

2 States Ratify Repeal.

Hartford, Conn., July 11 (A.P.).—Connecticut swelled the ranks of States which have taken formal action to end national prohibition, as 50 delegates to a State convention today ratified the proposed 21st amendment.

The delegates were elected at a special election June 20 at which the State voted for repeal, 236,742 to 34,816.

Connecticut thus became the twelfth of the 36 States necessary to write the repeal amendment into the Federal Constitution.

Concord, N. H., July 11 (A.P.).—It took New Hampshire only 17 minutes today to officially record the State in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Adoption of the resolution ratifying the vote of June 30 was unanimous as all the delegates were pledged to repeal.

Bread Prices Here Ordered Probed

Wallace Issues Warning to Nation's Profiteering Bakers.

Announcement of an investigation into Washington bread prices followed closely on the heels of a warning to "profiteering" bakers throughout the country yesterday. The warning came from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, while rumored increases in local prices prompted the investigation.

The Department of Justice, already active in an investigation of conditions in three large cities, announced late yesterday that the situation here will be carefully looked into. It is understood, however, that present prices will remain the same.

As reports of bread "profiteering" reached the Agricultural Department from all sections of the country, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings was requested to assign agents for an investigation. He dispatched agents to Baltimore, Philadelphia and Richmond. The first inquiry was launched in North Dakota last week.

Johnson Busy, Message From Roosevelt Waits

"Gen. Johnson is not to be disturbed. Don't interrupt the general."

Thus was the word passed around among employes of the Mayflower Hotel yesterday that was intended to bar outsiders from a conference Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, was having with representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Thus it was that several secretaries and a couple of hours were required to get a message to the general from the White House.

Firemen Begin Gathering Cups For Big Parade

45 Handsome Trophies to Be Awarded; Theaters First to Donate.

As members of the trophy committee of the National Firemen's Labor Day parade began a campaign yesterday to secure 45 handsome loving cups, two Washington theaters led the list Hardie Meakin, manager of RKO-Keith's, and Carter Barron, city manager of Loew's Washington theaters, were the initial donors.

Both trophies were silver cups and are said to be as fine as any ever awarded by the parade committee. Mr. Meakin and Mr. Barron both stated they were glad to aid as worthy an event as the eleventh firemen's parade.

Starting yesterday, the trophy committee expects to secure the 45 cups by the end of next week. When the entire quota is in, they will form a striking display, which the firemen plan to place in a conspicuous place in downtown Washington.

The loving cups awarded by the officials of the national firemen's parade committee now adorn many fire companies throughout the Nation. They have been won by organizations from North Carolina to New York State. Unlike many trophies, when won once they become a permanent possession.

The cups will be given to winners in many events in the parade. Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal and founder of the pageant, is now at work on the details of the prizes and trophies. A complete list will be announced soon.

Each year a detailed description of the prizes and what a fire company, or float entrant must do to win one, is mailed to the organizations which plan to attend the parade. This material will soon be put in the mails by Bargagni and his committees.

Hamilton By-Laws Drafting Ordered

Roger J. Whiteford, counsel of the organization commitee for the proposed Hamilton National Bank of Washington, was instructed yesterday by this group to supply its members with tentative drafts of by-laws for the prospective institution for study at a future meeting of the committee.

Formation of committees to serve in advisory capacity on the business of the various branches of the new bank will be started, it was announced yesterday following a session of the bank's organization committee. These groups will have functions similar to those of advisory boards for branches of certain other banking institutions of the city.

Formation of these committees already has been begun by Potomac and Seventh Street Savings Banks, two of eight banks forming the new Hamilton National. Organization of similar bodies at the other banks will follow soon.

Waite Selected To Aid Ickes

city government, from which post he went to Dayton as city manager.

During the war, Waite served under Gen. W. W. Atterbury as deputy general director of transportation with the Second Army in France. He was awarded a Distinguished Service Medal and made an officer of the French Legion of Honor.

After the war, Waite engaged in private engineering practice until 1927, when he was called in by the railroads to build the Cincinnati terminal.

The new public works executive likes golf and bridge, but his real hobby is etching, of which he is considered a good judge.

He is bald, powerfully built, and wears glasses.

Frank C. Walker, the man called upon to coordinate the national recovery program for President Roosevelt, is another of the square-jawed, hard workers the President is bringing into service.

Walker, an intimate friend of the President, was summoned to the new assignment yesterday and later he was establishing an office to be labeled "executive secretary."

Born in Plymouth, Pa., Walker was reared in the mining country of Montana. He is a graduate of Notre Dame and practiced law in Butte, Mont., and several years ago moved to New York, where he now resides.

Walker is one of the original Roosevelt men and was selected by the President for treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

He has been frequently at the side of the President, but he was literally drafted for this job.

Walker's new task will be the smoothing out of conflicts among a group of administrators each of whom thinks his task is the one necessary to bring the country back to prosperity.

With a smile, he remarked:

"I guess I am going to be the goat."

Secretary Perkins Gets Clipping Bureau Protest

A formal protest was lodged with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins yesterday by William Thomas Saffell, head of a national press clipping bureau, after certain contracts for press clipping were awarded to companies outside of Washington.

In his protest Saffell claims he had been advised by the Labor Department that he would be invited at the proper time to submit bids on the department's needs for clippings. Through an error, however, his organization was not invited to bid, with the result he lost out entirely.

Foreign Sugar Quotas Set by Proposed Plan

Philippine Total Cut 32 Per Cent; Hawes Hits Draft.

(Associated Press.)

Brushing away opposition from Philippine and Cuban sugar interests, a sugar conference subcommittee working at the behest of the farm adjustment administration, yesterday virtually completed a draft agreement to balnace consumption in the United States against production from all sources.

Under the plan domestic sugar beet and cane growers would be free from any obligation to restrict their crops during 1933-34.

The agreement, sought by the farm relief administrators, proposes the establishment of quotas for the several major areas supplying the United States market, estimated to total 6,350,000 short tons annually.

In addition, it would set up a sugar stabilization board to administer the agreement and regulate prices from day to day in the United States.

Tentative quotas were calculated on estimated production for 1933-1934. The agreement, if approved by Secretary Wallace after public hearings, will date from July 1 of this year.

A tentative agreement was reached to give Cuba an annual quota of 1,700,000 tons, and a nonvoting membership on the stabilization board. Cuba is not represented on the committee.

Domestic quotas were designed to fit the estimated production for 1933-34, while Hawaii's production estimate was cut 5 per cent in calculating her share of the American market, as was that of Puerto Rico.

The Philippine estimated total was reduced 32 per cent in alloting the islands their quota, despite strong protest by former Senator Harry B. Hawes, representative of Philippine producers on the committee.

The draft agreement was attacked by Thomas L. Chadbourne, of New York, author of the 1931 world restriction formula and representative of Cuban sugar interests. In a statement he said it was self-contradictory because it made no provision for production limitation.

"The draft of agreement under consideration," he said, "is an open invitation to all the signatory producers to overproduce. The result is an agreement of the refiners, by the refiners and for the refiners."

Senator Hawes termed the agreement "immoral, illogical and unlawful," because "it proposes to give to Cuba, a foreign nation, 448,000 additional tons each year and take this tonnage from the Philippines."

Bartering Ends As Corn Price Hits 50 Cents

Merchants Who Accepted Grain Are Profiting by Advances.

Lincoln, Nebr., July 11 (A.P.).—The barter system which kept hundreds of Midwestern farm families in groceries last winter has been tossed over the sideboard with the advent of 50-cent corn.

Piles of bartered yellow ears still loom big as houses in the business sections of many Nebraska towns, but they are not increasing. Farmers are selling their grain now instead of trading it to the store proprietors.

And the proprietor himself is carting to market some of the corn he took in at 9 and 10 cents a bushel. Plenty of it he keeps, however, just in case the price rise continues.

Nebraska had a good corn crop last year—269,293,000 bushels, it is estimated that 31 per cent of this is yet on the farms—and that's why the farmer is happy.

There's money in the farm communities again and Saturday night along Main street is noisier and busier than ever. The manager of a Lincoln farmers' store reported today purchases had increased steadily the last three months.

Alexandria Groups List Museum Gifts Tonight

Reports on the ability of a number of civic and patriotic organizations to supply funds for the acquisition of one building of the Leadbeater Drug Corporation, of Alexandria, to be used as a museum of the fixtures, equipment and records of the old company, will be submitted by representatives of these organizations tonight in Gadsby's Tavern.

At a recent meeting, 17 organizations were represented, and it is expected a majority of these, if not all, will announce contributions.

A description of the old apothecary shop was broadcast Monday night by Mrs. William Jackson Morton, wife of the rector of Christ Episcopal Church and chairman of a committed to raise funds.

Lawyer to Sell Huge Stock Issue

Dreams of what he would do if he had a million dollars may never hold any attraction again for J. Bruce Kremer, Washington attorney who yesterday agreed to take over $20,000,000 worth of stock in Libby, McNeill & Libby, the meat packing firm.

Mr. Kremer accepted an appointment as trustee for the stock, which represents a controlling interest in the packing firm. The stock belongs to Swift & Co., but must be sold under a decree of the District Supreme Court. Pending sale, it was turned over to Mr. Kremer by the court.

Swift & Co. was ordered to stop dealing in groceries and give up its control of any other meat packing concern. Mr. Kremer now is looking for a purchaser of the stock.

Harry S. New, former Postmaster General, is trustee for another block of Swift & Co. stock. He was appointed by the court to take over stock holdings in various public stockyards. The sale of this stock also was ordered, but no purchaser has been found.

Hull Will Build Giant Distillery

Special to The Washington Post.

Peoria, Ill., July 11.—Through the efforts of W. E. Hull, former representative of Peoria, a new distillery which will be the largest in the world with a daily capacity of 20,000 bushels of grain to distill medicinal and beverage spirits, will be completed by the first of the year. Hiram Walker & Sons, Ltd., and Gooderman & Worts, Ltd., of Canada, will build the plant and operate it.

Mr. Hull and Robert Clarke, with the distilling business of Clarke Brothers Co., Peoria, for many years, will be associated with the distillery.

Mr. Hull said today repeal of the eighteenth amendment will bring more prosperity to the country, to the farmers, to the industrialists and the people in general than any other law that could be passed by Congress.

Midwest G.O.P. Rally Looks to '34 Elections

Leaders of Eight States Meet Everett Sanders in Chicago.

Chicago, July 11 (A.P.).—Midwest Republicanism met in a round-table discussion tonight and talked over ways and means of gaining congressional control in the 1934 elections.

Leading in the discussion was Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee and director of Herbert Hoover's campaign for the Presidency last year. National committeemen and women and State chairmen from eight States met with him.

Four-Hour Session.

They sat down at 7 p. m. at a banquet table for four hours of deliberations. The session was an executive one, but Sanders revealed the general trend.

"We are preparing for the 1934 congressional elections," he said, "impressing upon the State leaders the importance of the elections and discussing the general plan for the campaign.

"Every member of the House of Representatives and one-third of the senators are up for election. It is too early to make any predictions, but the Republican party will wage an active campaign."

Others attending the conference said that under consideration particularly were the policies and activities of the present administration—and the phases thereof to be used for campaign material in 1934.

Fourth Conference.

Sanders stressed that although J. R. Nutt, of Ohio, treasurer of the national committee, was present, the conference was not called to consider raising of campaign funds. Also representing the national committee were Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, chairman of the women's division, and W. J. Donald, Sanders' assistant. Representative Bertrand Snell, House minority leader, also was present.

It was the fourth of such regional conferences, others being held previously in New York, Washington and Boston.

"That there already is considerable Republican interest looking forward to 1934," Sanders said, "has been exemplified by practically full attendance at the conferences, including tonight's."

Prisoner Dies in Court Leap.

Chicago, July 11 (A.P.).—Drawing himself up to a courtroom window from his wheel chair, William Henry, 20, a former convict charged with larceny, jumped four stories to death from the criminal court room of Chief Justice John Prystalski today. He had been injured when the car he stole crashed during pursuit.

The desk is described as the kind used by salesmen in real estate offices.

THE Civil Service Commission has received a number of complaints alleging unfair efficiency ratings of dismissed employes. The commission made no announcement that "it would review all protests and decide whether injustices had been done employes." The commission has no such authority. It is not empowered either by the civil service act, the classification act of 1923, or by executive order relating to separations on account of reductions of force, to review fairness and equity of an efficiency rating given an employe by his superior officers. The commission's authority is limited in reductions of force to investigation or audit of the procedure incident to the executive order on the subject.

Numerous court decisions and opinions of Attorneys General have declared that such questions as the diligence, accuracy and general performance of employes are not within the control of the commission. It was said by the Supreme Court of the United States in one case that these "are matters peculiarly within the province of those who are in charge of and superintending the department, and, until Congress by some special and direct legislation makes provision to the contrary, we are clear that they must be settled by those administrative officers."

The Civil Service Commission can investigate to see that efficiency ratings are made according to regulations and that removals in reduction of force are made according to law and executive order. The commission can not determine the degree of the efficiency of an employe.

The point is made that Communist interference in the dismissed Federal employes' cases (not condoned by The Federal Diary) will do something no other step has done "if and when" they start a march toward the White House. It will put the cause of the Federal worker on the front pages of the Nation's newspapers, for while the Communists fail to accomplish their ends they do make news and the dailies welcome news.

The Federal Diary has watched exchanges for weeks and has failed to find any stories displaying the cause of the Federal employe away from Washington.

U. S. Diplomat To Chile Quits After Decade

William S. Culbertson to Resume Capital Law Practice.

Santiago, Chile, July 11 (A.P.).—William S. Culbertson resigned today as United States Ambassador after a decade in the diplomatic service.

While he had not been reappointed, he had been requested to remain here indefinitely, but preferred to announce his retirement to private life at this time because of the strenuous five years he spent here during a critical period in Chilean history.

Culbertson, a native of Kansas, was transferred to the Santiago post from the Legation at Bucharest in July, 1928, during negotiations concerning the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru. Approximately one year after his arrival a final settlement was reached and a treaty signed. He figured prominently in the final negotiations.

He plans to leave here in mid-August for Washington, D. C., where he will resume the practice of law and a professorship in Georgetown University.

Palooka Here

New Post Comic Paves Way for Durante Portrayed in Film Soon.

Joe Palooka, the comic strip character, who makes his initial bow in The Post Sunday, has become such a national name that the movies have adopted him.

Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante has been selected to depict this prize-fighting, swaggering, good-natured hero of the funnies. Very shortly he will make his screen debut in a United Artists production, 'Joe Palooka," at Loew's Palace Theater.

Palooka is the work of the celebrated cartoonist, Ham Fisher. He always is humorous and in a happy frame of mind. He has many friends and they are almost as amusing as he.

The comic strip comedian will appear first in the Sunday section. Every day thereafter he will be found in the regular black and white strips.

Joe Palooka is one of four new comic characters that The Post begins this Sunday to present. Watch for them all.

U.S. Diplomatic Posts Menaced By Dollar's Fall

Worthy Democrats Shy at Proffers Because of Heavy Expenses.

By Harold J. T. Horan.

Fall of the American dollar abroad is the latest hardship which threatens to demoralize the entire American foreign service, it became known here yesterday.

The long series of economies which has affected all Federal employes has fallen with especial severity on those employes of the Department of State now abroad. These same economic conditions are behind the reluctance the President's advisers have encountered in their offers of diplomatic posts to worthy Democrats.

As the dollar declines on the international money markets, the representatives of this Government in other countries find that their living expenses have risen as much as 30 per cent. The further the dollar departs from the gold standard, the greater will be the burden upon American attaches on field service.

In the following countries the conditions for American consular and diplomatic officers are rapidly becoming intolerable on account of the severity with which their emoluments have been reduced: Poland, Lithuania, Esthonia, France, Switzerland, Holland, Italy, Belgium, China, Germany, South Africa and Turkey.

How Incomes Decreased.

The long list of grievances of foreign service officers began when their basic pay was reduced a flat 15 per cent. After that the Government took away all representation allowances. Then Secretary Hull cut their rent allowances to a fraction; an ambassador is allowed $720 a year rent, whereas formerly he was allowed $3,000.

Then foreign service officers were made to pay the American income tax and on top of all the United States went off the gold standard.

In the case of at least one diplomatic post, the President has been forced to offer the position to three men before he found a candidate able to bear the burden of diplomatic entertainment. This is particularly true in countries where the gold standard still obtains, but in other countries like Great Britain and the dominions, the disparity between the dollar and the pound or its equivalent is still very great, due to the maintenance of living costs for people purchasing with coin of the realm.

Ministerships Aplenty.

Up to the present time President Roosevelt has appointed only 13 ambassadors and 8 ministers in replacing Republican holdovers. Of the ambassadors, three have come up from the ranks, Robert Peet Skinner, now Ambassador to Turkey; Joseph C. Grew, Ambassador to Japan, and Fred Morris Dearing, Ambassador to Peru. Only one post now remains to be filled by a political appointee. That is the American Embassy in Chile, where William S. Culbertson is the incumbent.

A greater field exists in the ministerships, which have not been filled, and which are for those worthy Democrats who are able to make up the deficiency of the dollar in international exchange out of their own pockets. Those legations which eventually will be filled by political appointees include the Irish Free State, where Fred Sterling is the present chief of mission; Persia, where Charles Hart, is minister; Albania, Egypt, Bulgaria, Holland, Greece, Jugoslavia and Finland.

Policy of Other Nations.

Career diplomats, who are keenly feeling the loss of revenue in the fall of the dollar, will probably remain in the following countries: Paraguay, Switzerland, South Africa, Norway, Guatemala, Bolivia, Dominican Republic, China and Venezuela.

When other countries went off the gold standard and their diplomats here were in the unfavorable position of the State Department today, their governments made up the difference in the exchange by giving them additional allowances.

Patronage distribution was discussed by President Roosevelt last night in a conference with Postmaster General Farley. Hundreds of appointments remain to be made by the President, and he went over the long list in the meeting with his chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Burt Fish, of Deland, Fla., was mentioned yesterday as the likely appointee as Minister to Egypt.

Faction of Bulgars Offers Rival Peace

Followers of Mihailoff Want Protogerovists to Cease Attacks.

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 11 (A.P.).—Followers of the Macedonian revolutionary leader, Ivan Mihailoff, in a communique published in the newspapers today, offered peace to the Protogerovists, the rival revolutionary faction, on condition that the latter cease all attacks within 15 days.

The same offer was made by the Mihailovists to the Fascist Zveno group, which favors reconciliation with Jugoslavia, and also to certain members of the government, who, the communique says, encourage Protogerovist actions.

Unless the Protogerovist activities cease, the Mihailovists "will take necessary measures," the announcement said. Both the revolutionary factions are striving for establishment of an independent Macedonian state, but they are frequently in bloody clashes with each other, usually by assassination.

Evanston, Ill., July 11 (A.P.).—The World Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church today reported a total income of $3,537,887 for the year ended last May 31, a decrease of $1,238,575, said Dr. Orrin W. Auman, treasurer.

While 18 Episcopal areas showed losses, the 15.5 per cent decrease in the Atlanta area was the lowest. New York was second with 20.83 per cent. The best record was made by the Binghamton district, of the Wyoming conference. During 1932, the church gave to all causes $65,597,606, which is 33.57 per cent under the peak year of 1927, when the amount was $98,758,030.

Bringing the FINEST within reach of all!

ON Friday, July 7th, we made an announcement of far-reaching importance to anyone who drives a car.

For nothing could be more important than an announcement which brings AMOCO-GAS--the original special motor fuel--and the finest fuel in the world--within reach of all.

For almost two decades millions of gallons per year of AMOCO-GAS have been sold at a 5¢ premium. AMOCO-GAS cost more to make; it does more; it is worth more.

BUT . . . we want more AMOCO-GAS users in addition to the many, many present devoted ones. Changed economic factors in industry, combined with the advantages resulting from our recent big expansion program, make it possible:

....to REDUCE the premium on AMOCO-GAS by 2¢ a gallon!*

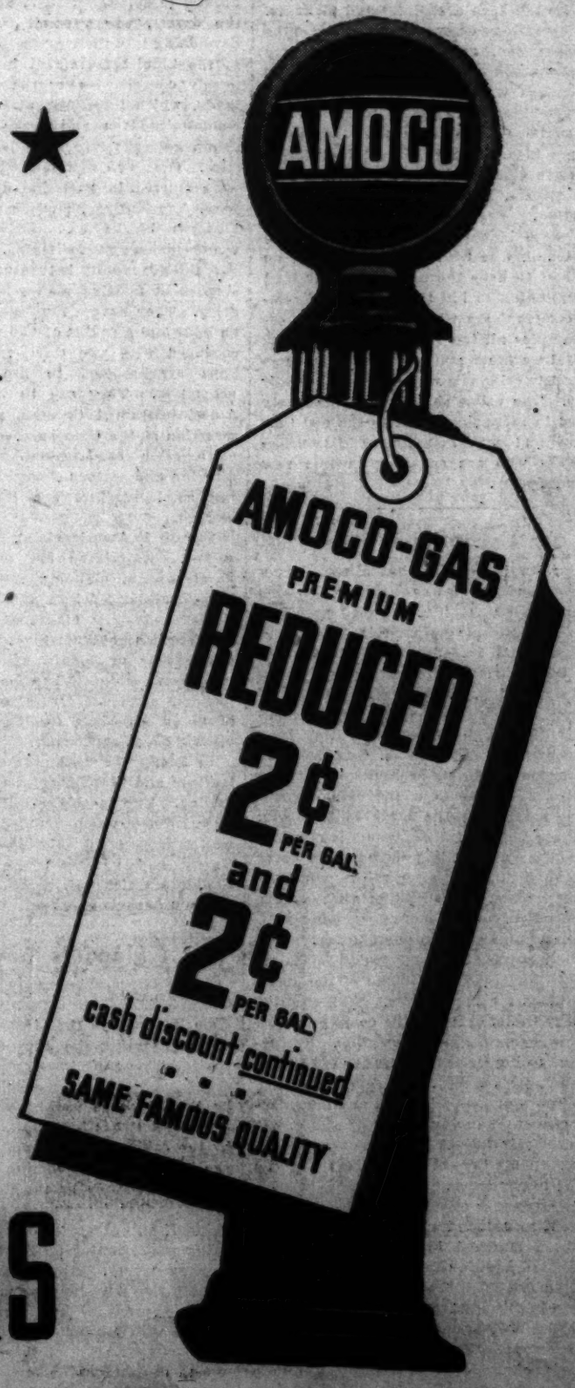
....without in any way changing its ingredients or famous quality! It's the same matchless AMOCO-GAS.

And that means bringing the finest within reach of all. There is nothing else like AMOCO-GAS. It has often been imitated--never equalled. It is in a class by itself--the aristocrat of motor fuels.

AMOCO-GAS furnishes a luxury in riding that is a real delight--a freedom from repair worries that is amazing--an extended life and use of motors that is surprising--and an economy of operation that means you pay nothing for its many extra advantages.

Present users know AMOCO-GAS always was the greatest value--and know it is now greater value than ever before.

To all others we say, "Use AMOCO-GAS and you'll agree we have brought the finest within reach of all. So why use anything else?"



The AMERICAN OIL COMPANY

* And 2¢ per gallon CASH DISCOUNT also continued in towns where now in effect--making a combined saving of 4¢ per gallon.

Dealing With Kidnapers.

Two more kidnapings, one in Illinois and the other in New York, serve notice on the public and the Government that gangsters are rapidly developing a new and terrible regime of crime. By utilizing modern facilities of communication and transport and by shrewd selection of victims the gangsters are making huge profits out of kidnaping. In several notable recent cases the criminals collected heavy tolls and easily evaded pursuit by State and Federal officials.

As a result of popular indignation after the Lindbergh case Congress enacted a law making it a Federal crime to transport in interstate commerce any kidnaped person; and a conspiracy to commit such a crime is punishable by the same penalty—"imprisonment in the penitentiary for such term of years as the court, in its discretion, shall determine."

Suggestions were made that Congress should also make it a felony to use the mails in connection with kidnaping. It was also suggested that restrictions be placed upon the transport of machine guns and other deadly weapons in interstate commerce.

It is well-nigh impossible for kidnapers to confine their operations within a State. All methods by which the Federal Government can pursue them should be employed. Senator Copeland is authority for the statement that the subcommittee of the Senate now inquiring into racketeering has found that 87 machine guns were in private hands, and that three of the guns were made in New York. Thousands of pistols are imported, besides additional tens of thousands manufactured in this country. Efforts will be made to locate machine gun factories.

Assistant Attorney General Keenan, who is undertaking the task of running down gangsters, is convinced that highly intelligent and well-financed criminals are directing the conspiracies that make a mockery of both Federal and State laws. Some of the kidnaping cases reveal that the perpetrators are keen organizers and planners. Their operations extend over many months of preparation, and the "getaways" are shrewdly executed. In order to break up these gangs it will be necessary for the Government and the States to set up far more effective detection agencies than those now provided. The people of the United States are victims of a new and diabolical crime system, and they must have better protection.

Although kidnapers are often successful in matching wits with law officers, they do their best to keep the police off their trail by threatening to kill their victims if relatives communicate with the police. Agonized families all too frequently heed these dreadful warnings and pay over large sums in secret to criminals who easily make their escape. The police should be immediately notified in kidnaping cases, to the end that capture and punishment may discourage gangsters who are engaging in this new crime industry.

An Exceptional State.

Nebraska is a State that always has a balanced budget. Its constitution contains provisions which insure this situation, which has become so rare in States and nations. This western corn State has not been free from the general charge of excessive spending, as the recent threats of farmers against high taxes has demonstrated, but high levies have not been caused by debts and interest. The Nebraska constitution absolutely prohibits bond issues and limits the amount of indebtedness that can be created by the State to $100,000. The State Board of Assessments is required to make an annual levy sufficient to cover half the biennial appropriations made by the legislature, but spending agencies are not permitted to use more than one-eighth of the appropriations in any quarter.

How many States today would be happy to be in like position? Some of the ambitious plans for improvement have resulted in heavy taxes, but with the coming of lean years immediate relief is possible. By curtailing appropriations taxes can be correspondingly reduced. There are no huge bond issues or heavy interest and amortization charges hanging over the State. It can promptly adjust its extraordinary expenses to fit the reduced ability of its citizens to pay taxes.

The strenuous efforts of the Federal Government to reduce its operating budget has not been matched by like effort in many States. In addition to its own budget worries the National Treasury is providing a large proportion of the funds for relief that are being distributed in the larger cities of the country. Many State legislatures and executives have failed to give the vital question of reduced public expenditures the attention that the urgency of the problem demands. But Nebraska, being compelled to pay as it goes, is not likely to be extravagant.

Bonus Vs. Aid to Disabled.

No drive for immediate payment of the so-called bonus will be approved by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War. Meeting in their national convention at Cincinnati the disabled veterans decided that other issues involving the welfare of ex-service men are far more important than the bonus. As a result of this convention Commander Joseph W. McQueen has issued a statement of policy emphasizing the opposition of the D. A. V. to any immediate bonus campaign and to "bonus marches" on Washington.

The D. A. V. is, of course, particularly interested in the welfare of men who were injured or had their health impaired in the actual service of their country. Its energy will be concentrated upon cases of this kind. Indications are that the D. A. V. will make no effort to restore the pensions of veterans injured in civil life, nor to uphold the cause of that large group of veterans whose benefits depend upon legal presumptions. This attitude has widespread public support.

The Government has an unquestioned responsibility to aid the families of veterans who lost their lives in the line of duty and to extend benefits to the war-disabled. The resentment which has been recently manifested against enormous expenditures on veterans is directed, for the most part, against allowances to men who suffered no ill effects from their war service. Neglect of the men whose ability to support themselves was impaired while they were in active military service can not be justified.

Efforts have been made to mitigate the effects of the economy act so far as combat disabled veterans are concerned. By concentrating its attention on this phase of veterans' welfare the D. A. V. will doubtless be able to help the Government iron out any inequities that may remain in the regulations of the Veterans Administration. A united stand on the part of all veterans organizations in favor of adequate care for the war disabled and the complete elimination of abuses in the pension system, would aid in the establishment of a sound policy.

Adopting American Ways.

American inventions are making startling changes in all parts of the world. Drowsy antiquity rubs its eyes as airplanes and automobiles roar into Palestine, Arabia and China. Moslem pilgrims to Mecca and Medina travel by automobile and enjoy the comforts of thermos bottles and electric lights. Radio broadcasts are available to air travelers over the Nile and Euphrates valleys. Recently such travelers read bulletins of the Derby race while sailing down through Africa; and reports of the earthquake at Long Beach, Cal., were received by airplane pilots in Mesapotamia. Siberian fisher folk are astonished to pick up a stray American whose airplane crashed during a world flight.

Palestine is enjoying a real estate and building boom after the American fashion. Tel-aviv has grown from a village of 2,000 to a city of 60,000 within a few years. The orange crop of Palestine will reach 6,000,000 boxes this year. Potash and other salts are extracted on a huge scale from the Dead Sea. A power plant on the River Jordan is spreading light and power over the desert, where small settlements are developing into thriving towns. The leaders of the Zionist movement in Palestine are deeply concerned over the speculation in lands, which interferes with the collective community idea and tends to break up group holdings into town lots and factory sites. Over 600 new industrial enterprises were started in Palestine during the last year. Agriculture, modern transportation, business blocks and modern residences represent heavy investments.

A Buffalo factory is turning out thirty-six single-seat fighting planes for the Chinese army. They have a top speed of 200 miles an hour and a radius of 650 miles. Each is equipped with two thirty-caliber machine guns synchronized to fire through the propellers. They are to be manned by American-trained Chinese, now under instruction at the Chinese government school of aviation at Laoyang. An American director and sixteen American pilots serving as instructors are training Chinese airmen.

Turkey is Americanizing to a remarkable extent. Americans are overhauling the fiscal system, planning railroads and air lines, training Turkish aviators, and establishing industrial plants of various kinds. The Turkish government already has in use twenty-four up-to-date fighting planes of American make. The model farm of Turkey's president, Mustapha Kemal, boasts of many American tractors, binders, and other modern equipment.

In Soviet Russia hundreds of American tractors and "combines" are used in wheat raising. The largest wheat-grower in the United States was astounded when he visited the largest collectivized farm in Soviet Russia and witnessed the operations of combines which cut, threshed, and sacked 300,000 bushels of wheat per day.

Japan's Navy.

Japan is preparing to spend about $156,000,000 on naval construction. A dispatch from Tokyo says that this program is designed to bring the Japanese navy up to the full strength allowed under the London naval treaty. Announcement of this plan by the Japanese naval general staff indicates that it has been tentatively approved by the cabinet and will be provided for in the budget for the coming year.

A recent study by the Navy Department indicates that Japan needs only about seven ships of an aggregate tonnage of 21,339 to bring that country up to the limits of the London treaty. Apparently Japanese authorities do not agree with this calculation, for the program announced includes 31 vessels with an aggregate tonnage of more than 68,000. Out of this group only one vessel—a 10,000-ton aircraft carrier—is mentioned as a replacement. If the program is carried out, it appears that two 8,500-ton cruisers, one aircraft carrier (the program calls for two vessels of this type), fourteen destroyers, six submarines, one mine layer and eight torpedo boats will be added to the strength of the Japanese navy.

Without any of the vessels contemplated or now under construction, the Japanese navy compares very favorably with the fleets of the United States and Great Britain. Japan has 156 ships, totaling 596,178 tons; Britain 119 ships, totaling 589,850 tons, and the United States 68 ships, totaling 598,370 tons. At the completion of Japan's building program that country's relative naval strength will be considerably greater than was contemplated at the London conference, because the United States and Great Britain have been less active in naval building.

The American program calls for 32 new vessels within the next three years and the modernization of several battleships, but this construction will not bring the United States up to full treaty strength by 1936, when the naval treaty expires. It appears that Japan will be the only country to take full advantage of her treaty rights to build new vessels of war during the life of the London agreement. That country has already announced that it will not again agree to the ratios fixed by the London conference, which give the United States and Great Britain theoretical superiority in naval strength.

College Requisites.

In this era of coordination and standardization it has not been overlooked that the requirements for college entrance throughout the United States present a complicated variety of conflicting demands for qualifying the prospective freshman. An exhaustive study of this situation has just been completed by the National Survey of Secondary Education which makes a valuable report on the necessity of better articulation of high schools and colleges.

This survey discloses that no less than twenty-six different types of college entrance requirements were maintained among more than 500 colleges and universities questioned during this study, yet among all of the traditional entrance standards none was found worthy of entire commendation by the survey committees. The research report expresses the belief that much of the effort to establish standards and subjects required might better be directed toward the articulation problem at its source, meaning "study of the ability, habits, characteristics, interests and health of the pupils."

High school pupils, the survey holds, should be guided and directed into or away from higher institutions on the basis of the relationships of these characteristics to their scholastic success. The national survey was made by virtue of authority and appropriation from Congress and was inaugurated and directed by the former Commissioner of Education, Dr. W. J. Cooper, who concludes from the findings that the plans for articulating high schools and colleges are very confusing. Of the 517 colleges questioned only 23 per cent permit entrance on high school diploma; 63 per cent admit on the basis of a high school transcript of credits; 26 per cent require regular students to take the college board examination. Others accept the regents examination, but it is found that the intelligence test is rarely used as a test of ability to do college work.

Various colleges report the adoption of requirements intended to raise scholarship standards. Recent years show a decided lowering of language requirements, with greater emphasis placed on social studies. In addition to the usual high school records and old-style examinations, information is now sought as to personal and character traits, while some institutions have begun to make use of the intelligence and aptitude tests. That the new Commissioner of Education, Dr. George F. Zook, is keenly interested in college improvement was shown by his first address delivered before the National Alumni meeting, when he spoke earnestly in behalf of the necessity of making the college more accessible, both geographically and financially, to greater numbers of American youth.

Anthony Hope.

From the Boston Transcript.

We usually think of the great Victorians as that group which reflected glory on the reign of the old queen chiefly during the years from 1840 to 1870. Dickens and Thackeray and George Eliot, Trollope and Reade and Collins, to name only the famous writers of fiction, were the delight of a generation whose evenings were spent in easy chairs exulting in the fall of Mrs. Proudy, weeping over the death of Little Nell, shuddering at the sinister villainy of Count Fosco. There was no telephone, no automobile, no radio. Everybody read, and the last years of Victoria, the "mauve decade," somebody has called it, still found reading under the Argand burner the one universal recreation.

The mechanics of life had not changed much since the Civil War. But new names were appearing on the flyleaves of books, the names of writers who could weave their spells of magic no less potently than those of 40 years since. Kipling, Barrie, Stevenson, Hardy, Maurice Hewlett, Robert Hichens, Anthony Hope were the new gods of our idolatry, and the announcement of a new book by any of them was a great event. Some of us can remember how "The Prisoner of Zenda" became the talk of two continents upon its appearance. To conceive the hero as a modern young man suddenly plunged by a strange stroke of fortune into the midst of medieval intrigue in a mysterious eastern principality was ingenious in itself, but the tale was written in a style that could hardly be matched in the mid-Victorian period. Anthony Hope, whose death has just been reported, wrote much that was excellent afterward, the "Dolly Dialogues" notably, but "The Prisoner of Zenda" remains his outstanding contribution to the literature of a period of great achievement.

The world of drab, dark duty, day by day,
Of honest man and thief, profession, trade,
Grief and despair, with fortune lost or made,
Had ceased to be, as in God's time it may.

Blue waters kissed a golden patch of sand,
A few bright acres all unknown to care.
Lovers were romping gayly, hand in hand.

Seemed bothered by doubts he could not understand
Or fretted burdens difficult to bear.

Hardships of Camping Would Be Unbearable if You Thought They'd Last Forever

By Robert Quillen

IN times like these, young people who must earn their living suffer more than their elders.

Youth lives in a new world, wherein nothing is real but the present. The past is a mythical era in which Cleveland, George Washington and Moses might have been contemporaries. It has no more significance than a fairy story.

To millions of young people, the present state of the world is normal. It is the only condition of which they have any knowledge.

They were in school during the prosperous years following the war, and school was the dominant interest and influence in their lives. The world of work and worry and wages did not become real to them until they graduated or quit school and faced the problem of earning their bread.

And the world they entered was a world of jobless men and bread lines, hip flasks and kidnapers, government aid and foreclosed mortgages, despair and desperation.

They couldn't find jobs, so they learned to loaf. To many of them, loafing seems a normal existence. To others, restless and gnawed by ambition, a fruitless search for work seems the normal fate of the poor. A world whipped by depression is the only world they know.

They may read of other times and conditions, but it will be like reading a book of travel. Nothing seems real to us except our own experience.

Adults are more fortunate. Experience comforts them. They know that times like these are subnormal and temporary, and the knowledge gives them courage and patience to endure and wait.

If young people have been made listless or bitter by many disappointments, it is because they don't realize that present conditions are unusual and must inevitably change.

We are like snowbound travelers, or a ship's company wrecked on an island, or the people of a besieged city.

Such people, being hopeful of ultimate delivery, call on their reserves of fortitude and patience, tighten their belts and cheerfully make the best of a bad business.

That is what these young people would do in a like situation. And they would do it now if they could see things as they are.

If conditions are temporary and unusual, the method of dealing with them should be temporary and unusual. And those affected should adopt temporary interests, standards and ambitions.

The right philosophy for those who await rescue is a grim and cheerful good sportsmanship that marks time and doesn't worry.

The besieged eat horse and wear rags gamely because they know that the diet and the costume are the temporary expedients of a brief adventure.

Political Comment

Congressional Elections.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Political wiseacres have prepared several sets of guesses as to the composition of the Senate in the next Congress, and guesses they will remain until there is considerably more light on the unknown quantity: the success or failure of the measures instituted by the Roosevelt administration to aid recovery. Personalities will play some part in next year's congressional elections, but the determining factor will be the popular opinion of the administration. No one can tell what will be its standing in November, 1934.

Political overturns in midterm are not uncommon. A revulsion in sentiment is expected by the experts. But return of the full tide of prosperity in the meantime might overwhelm Republican attempts to control Congress.

New Deal, New Dollar.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

The President has been exceedingly reticent with respect to his plans for the future of the dollar. But he has indicated in no uncertain terms that he will not sanction a return to gold at any parity for a long time, and he has indicated further that the new deal involves a new dollar—one wholly unlike the gold dollar that weighed 23.22 grains in good times and bad. "America seeks the kind of dollar which a generation hence will have the same purchasing and debt-paying power as the dollar value we hope to attain in the near future." This is the nearest we have to an official statement of the administration's monetary policy for the future.

Credit to Russia.
Minneapolis Journal.

Evidently Soviet Russia is edging farther and farther into the good graces of the United States Government. The relatively small loan that has been floated with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with which to buy American commodities, is to be followed, apparently, by larger credits for the same purpose.

Other governments are chary about credits to Moscow, and other nations have had their troubles with the Reds. Great Britain, for instance, has just come through an uncomfortable experience, in the strange trial and conviction of five British engineers, three of whom were exiled and the other two of whom have just been released. It was upon the conviction of these engineers that Great Britain took the extremely retaliatory measure of clapping an embargo on trade with the Soviets. The release of these two engineers was finally effected in exchange for lifting the embargo.

The Once Over.

ELMER TWITCHELL MAKES A BANK INQUIRY.

Testifying in the case of a deposed New York bank president, indicted on charge of looting the institution, a famous brain specialist cites the banker's answers to an intelligence test as proof of mental weakness. "When I asked him the difference between an ox and a horse and between a bird and a butterfly his replies were not as good as those of a 10-year-old child," said the expert.

After reading the above testimony Elmer Twitchell dashed to his bank to see if everything was reassuring there. Elmer rushed in the minute the bank opened this morning and demanded to see the president at once.

"Is it important?" asked his secretary.

"Very," snapped Elmer. "I've got to find out at once if he knows the difference between an ox and a horse."

"The president can not be seen on such a trivial a matter," answered the secretary.

"Trivial!" roared Elmer. "It's the key to a man's fitness to head a big bank. Either he tells me right away the difference between an ox and a horse or I withdraw my funds and put them in another bank."

• • • •

The secretary saw that Elmer meant business and ushered him into the president's office.

"Good morning. What can I do for you?" asked the president suavely.

"I'm a depositor here and I want to reassure myself on the situation in this institution," explained Mr. Twitchell.

"Fine!" replied the president. "At the close of business July 1 our cash resources were five million two——"

"Never mind that stuff," interrupted Elmer. "Let's get down to things that really matter. What's the difference between an ox and a horse?"

"An ox has never won a Kentucky Derby," replied the president.

"Correct," replied Elmer, quite pleased. "Now how can you tell a bird from a butterfly?"

"If it has a worm in its mouth it is not a butterfly," said the bank president without half trying.

• • • •

Mr. Twitchell ceased worrying about the bank at this point, but decided to try a few more questions just for good measure.

"What is your reaction to the old adage, 'When the mice are away the cat will play?'" he asked.

"They gather no moss," replied the banker.

"What is the largest river in the United States and where does it find its source?" asked Elmer.

"Calcium carbide. 5,280 feet," replied the banker in his full stride.

"Where are nitrates found?"

"Einstein."

"Okay," concluded Elmer, smiling and satisfied. "This bank is good enough for me! Up to this little chat I was worried."

Faster Speed Limit Needed to Clear Traffic in Congested Areas.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Increasing traffic in Washington threatens to overburden many of the main thoroughfares used principally by motorists in entering and leaving the city.

Streets controlled by mechanical devices very often go improperly timed, permitting traffic to "pile up, stagger and loaf." Traffic officers detailed at street intersections often do much more to impede an even flow of traffic.

Congestion is becoming so acute on downtown streets that the traffic department will be forced to synchronize traffic lights to a faster speed limit.

Public Works For Maryland Get Approval

Million Will Be Expended in Washington Area for Projects.

Construction projects, representing a financial outlay of more than $1,000,000, were approved yesterday for nearby Maryland at a meeting of the State's executive committee for allotment of the Federal public works funds.

Projects to cost nearly $3,000,000 were approved for other sections of the State.

The committee, which met in Gov. Ritchie's office, will forward the recommendations to the Federal Government for final decision.

Among the outstanding projects in the vicinity of Washington, for which funds will be asked from the recently-passed public works bill, will be a memorial highway from the District of Columbia to Gettysburg, Pa. This will connect, at the District line, with Wisconsin avenue.

Benefit to Hyattsville.

Although plans have not been completed for the road, it is expected that it will follow the Rockville pike to that town, thence on an air line to Frederick and Gettysburg.

Hyattsville will be benefited, if recommendations meet with final approval, by a new postoffice distributing station, which will serve about 25,000 persons in this vicinity. At present the mail is taken to Baltimore for distribution.

A new postoffice building also was approved for Leonardtown, at a cost of $50,000, while the University of Maryland is expected to receive approximately $300,000 for new buildings. These buildings will be erected for the Bureau of Mines Department.

Representative David J. Lewis (Democrat), of the Sixth Congressional District, in a fiery speech to the gathering, composed of Gov. Ritchie, Maryland's United States senators and congressmen and other advisors, demanded a more searching investigation of the proposals at hand. On several occasions the meeting was brought to a standstill by his heated demands.

Road Approved.

In addition to the Washington-Gettysburg highway, Representative Lewis asked for a 30-foot highway along the present Conduit road, from the District Line to Great Falls. Including a steel bridge over Cabin John Creek, the project would cost $269,411. This was approved.

Another project for the Sixth District, namely, the restoration of old Fort Frederick in Washington County at a cost of $20,000, also was approved. The request for a dam to control the flow of the Potomac River was deferred until a later date.

In the Fifth District Congressman Stephen W. Gambrill asked for, and received, the approval of recommendations for the dredging of Parish Creek Harbor, improvements at Fort Washington amounting to $59,000 and at Fort Meade amounting to $466,500. Improvements also were approved for the Curtis Bay Depot.

Three of the Annapolis projects, consisting of the construction of 10 apartment houses at the Naval Academy, the erection of a sewerage disposal plant for the town, and a hook-up system with the Academy, were approved.

After a heated debate from all sides, the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal project, on the Eastern Shore, was approved. Representative Thomas Alan Goldsborough, Democrat, and Representative Lewis contested the approval on the grounds that the outlay of $21,000,000 would overshadow more important construction.

Pass Bay Dredging.

The dredging of Sinepuxent Bay, at $781,000; Knapps Narrows, at $68,700, and the Deals Island Thoroughfare, at $47,000 were approved. Similar projects for Annapolis Harbor, Tangier Sound, Rhodes Point, the Susquehanna River and Baltimore Harbor tributaries, met with noncommittal approval, as did the dredging of the Pocomoke River channel and the Barren Islands Gaps.

The request that funds be asked for the dredging of Baltimore Harbor and the "Upper Harbor," brought forth favorable and unfavorable comment from all sides. Before adjourning, however, both of these proposals were favored.

Representative William P. Cole, of the Second Congregational District, asked for and received the approval of improvements at Edgewood Arsenal, Fort Hoyle, Camp Holabird, Fort Howard, and Perry Point Hospital. These proposals would represent an output of approximately $2,000,000.

Williams, Alexandria's School Head, Sworn In

T. C. Williams, new superintendent of the Alexandria public schools, was sworn in yesterday at the office of the clerk of the corporation court. He now is engaged in making preparations for the opening of school in September.

In addition to the old books which have been turned in by pupils under the new plan adopted by the school board for reducing their cost, new books to be sold at cost have been acquired from local dealers. It is estimated that under the new plan books in the graded schools will cost $1.50 a year and in the high schools $2 a year.

D. C. Man Given Welfare Post At Alexandria

A. W. Boehringer Assumes Directorship of Work on Monday.

Albert W. Boehringer, of Washington, was appointed yesterday by City Manager Wallace Lawrence to take over the charity and welfare work of Alexandria. He will assume his duties next Monday, and will have as his assistant, Mrs. Nettie Garner Thompson, of Alexandria. His salary has been fixed at $140 a month.

Mr. Boehringer is 28 years old, and for the last seven years has handled various phases of welfare and charity work. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and the School of Manager of Social Work in New York; was assistant social and recreation director of the Simpson M. E. Church in Brooklyn; social case worker of Children's Village, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; assistant manager of the emergency work bureau in Washington, and handled transient cases for the Travelers' Aid in Washington. He also was secretary of the American Association of Public Welfare Work in Washington.

In his new work Mr. Boehringer will take over all the charity and welfare work of Alexandria heretofore handled by the United Charities, which has functioned for the past several years. He will handle the funds allocated to Alexandria by the State welfare body. There is now $3,893 available for this work, $3,500 more will be made available shortly, and later in the year $7,000 additional is expected, giving approximately $14,500 for the year.

The headquarters of the new welfare organization will be in the rooms formerly occupied by the United Charities, in the City Hall Building.

Pupil Puzzle

Prince Georges Wonders How It Will Fit All in Existing Schools.

In his annual report yesterday, Nicholas Orem, superintendent of the Prince Georges County schools, noted a record increase in school attendance.

So great is the increase, Orem said, it is very probable that some of the schools next year will have to work on a part-time basis. Enrollment in the last 12 years has practically doubled.

A request for more school buildings in the county has been submitted to Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, of the Fifth Congressional District. Although this request has not been submitted to the public works committee of Maryland, this is expected to be done at the next meeting.

Sewer Survey In Arlington Is Completed

County Hopes to Obtain Government Loan of $2,250,000.

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Preliminary surveys of the sewerage conditions of Arlington County have been completed with the view of obtaining $2,250,000 from the Federal Government, County Manager Roy S. Braden stated yesterday.

Braden stated that with the assistance of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas and County Auditor Elmer Newell an extensive study of the proposed installation of a county-wide sewerage system has been made.

Until such time as the administrator under the public works act has been appointed there is nothing more that the county can do, Braden pointed out.

Under Federal aid the county will be able to borrow money at 4 per cent and, according to provisions of the act, will only be required to pay back $1,750,000 on the basis of obtaining $2,250,000. The loan will run for a period of 35 years.

The maps, which have been prepared, show approximately 100 miles of main trunk lines and 200 miles of lateral lines.

The plans provide that the county will take over the several small sewerage systems now in the county, many of which will not be disturbed. Only where it is found that the lines now existing are inadequate, due to increased population, will the lines be touched, Braden stated.

It is the hope of the county board, as soon as it is learned that the funds can be obtained from the Federal Government, to perfect plans for the calling of an election on the bond issue at an early date.

So many champions in sight, and no one seems to have the right to wear whatever diamond belt should decorate the monarch's pelt. One champion stands up and says, discoursing ably through his fez, that he's the foremost and the best, the conqueror of all the rest. But when we plan to load him down with scepter and with kingly crown, some other champion appears, and all the ceremony queers. He says that he can throw the first, for money, chalk or wienerwurst, and other champions arrive, and swear they are the best alive, they have credentials by the ton to tell of victories they've won, forgetting contests they have lost—and so our wires are badly crossed. Jim Londos says that he alone should occupy the royal throne, and he makes out so good a case we'd lead him to the royal place; but Strangler Lewis then uprears, and says, through his indignant tears, "The claims this fellow makes are crimes—I've thrown the mutt some fourteen times. He will not meet me on the mat, or I would leave him squashed and flat." We would proclaim the Strangler king, but Browning steps a highland fling, and says he thrice has conquered Ed, and stood that worthy on his head. And so it goes; how can we choose the man to wear the champeen's shoes?

Labor Bureau Post Awarded To Dr. Lubin

Economist Is Appointed to Head Statistical and Research Work.

Dr. Isador Lubin, labor economist, statistician and a teacher at the Brookings Institution here since 1924, was yesterday named to head the Bureau of Labor Statistics, whose scope will be widened under his regime, it was announced yesterday at the Department of Labor.

All the statistical and research work of the department will be built up, Secretary Perkins said. She plans to push the search for ways of avoiding such industrial hazards as lead and chrome poisoning. The collection of data on industrial relations also will be widened in an effort to increase conciliation between employers and labor.

Dr. Lubin, who will be Secretary Perkin's chief of staff in this endeavor, has been teaching since 1916. In that year he began as an instructor in economics at the University of Missouri. His teaching was interrupted during the war, when he served as statistician and special economic expert. After the war he became assistant professor of economics in charge of labor problems at the University of Michigan.

The Brookings Graduate School of Economics and Government required his services in 1924, and he has taught there since. During this time he has served as economic adviser to several Senate committees investigating unemployment and manufacturing. Dr. Lubin now lives at 3701 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

$425,000 Loan For Ferry Denied

R. F. C. Refuses Financial Aid to Company Planning Project.

The project of the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. to build a ferry from its eastern terminus to Hudson, Md., on the Eastern Shore, was given a stiff jolt yesterday with denial by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of its application for a $425,000 loan.

No reason was given by the Federal finance agency for its refusal of the carrier's request. The loan had received the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The railway company had planned the purchase of two new late type ferryboats. Sailings every hour and a half from each side had been planned.

The new service had been expected to open to Washington markets considerable additional Eastern Shore produce and provide greatly improved transportation facilities for vacationists and motorists.

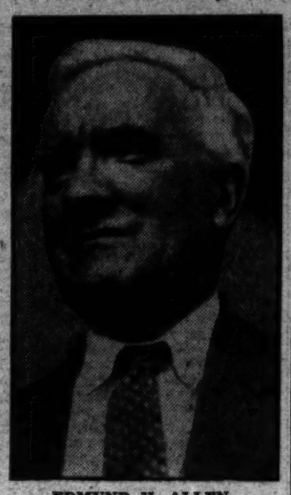
Dies Suddenly



EDMUND H. ALLEN, delegate from Fairfax County to Virginia House of Delegates, who fell dead last night while attending a meeting of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce.

Death Closes Plea by Allen On Zone Issue

Virginia Assemblyman Drops Dead at Meeting in Fairfax.

"Before this old-timer passes away I would like to see something done about this."

These were the closing words of an address delivered by Edmund H. Allen in behalf of a zoning proposal for Fairfax County last night at a meeting of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce at the Fairfax courthouse.

Five minutes later he fell from his seat, dead.

Mr. Allen was 64 years old. He was elected to the House of Delegates from Fairfax County in 1931, and was a candidate for relection on the Democratic ticket.

Born in Shepherdstown, W. Va., he moved to Fairfax County in his youth. He had been station agent of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad at Newington, Fairfax County, for 43 years. He was a past president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, past grand master of the Odd Fellows of Virginia, member of the Accotink Lodge of Odd Fellows, senior warden of the Pohick Church and a member of the Masonic Lodge.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Miss Alice Allen, and four sons, Edmund T., John and Morton, of Newington, and Herbert Allen, of Little Rock, Ark. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

The death of Mr. Allen probably will necessitate a special county election to elect a delegate to the special session of the House of Delegates in August for consideration of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Europe Is Split By Trade War, Despite Truce

France Leads Offensive by Measures Directed at German Products.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Paris, July 11 (U.P.).—Bitter trade war is breaking out over Europe with subsequent ill feelings, despite the tariff truce inspired by President Roosevelt at London, a survey revealed today.

The French government led in the offensive by promulgating a law, speedily passed by Parliament last Saturday, raising tariffs on approximately 100 products. The measure was in retaliation against Germany's recently declared moratorium on payment of foreign credits.

All the increases were directed against German trade but will none the less affect the commerce of other countries which export any of the 100 items to France. The French point out that the measure does not conflict with the London customs truce, inasmuch as it was under consideration before the truce was signed last May.

The products affected included chemicals, cotton linters, paints, glassware and various machine tools, most of which have been imported from German firms.

Difference in Methods.

The French also pointed out that Germany increased the rates on numerous items imported from France by a decree some months ago, despite a commercial treaty ratified and put into effect last February. The German government simply issued a decree raising the rates, but the French had to wait for parliamentary action.

France also has run into trade difficulties with Portugal, and the Portuguese foreign minister, Caiero Damatta, today visited Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour, seeking to terminate Franco-Portuguese trade hostilities.

Their troubles started when France increased the tariffs on madeira and port wines from Portugal. Portugal retaliated by raising the duties on French automobiles and perfumes. The French then slapped a 20 per cent surtax on Portuguese products to compensate for depreciation of Portugal's currency.

Impasse Develops.

Portugal countered with an increase on all French products of 20 per cent, and the situation stands at that impasse—an intolerable trade situation which Damatta wants to terminate.

Roumania has just established quotas on 300 import items in addition to new tariff surtaxes ranging from 10 to 50 per cent. The measures were directed mainly against Germany, which recently restricted imports from Roumania, chiefly farm products.

Poland has prohibited until October 10 the importation of wool, chemicals, tanning extracts, oleaginous grains and shoes—a move also directed chiefly at Germany.

Dead Detective Loses Election By 14 Votes

Nearly Wins Colmar Manor Race on Friend's Plea for "Honor" Vote.

Citizens of the Third Ward of Colmar Manor, Md., yesterday came within 14 votes of electing as their representative in the town council the late chief of the Washington Police Department's homicide squad, Harry K. Wilson.

Though Mr. Wilson died last Sunday, strenuous efforts on the part of his backers succeeded in keeping the former policeman's name on the ballot by convincing a large portion of the citizenry of the desirability of giving the late detective an "honor" vote.

Forty voters marked "X" after the name of Wilson. Sixty-seven cast their ballots for George W. Cox.

As a result of the balloting in Colmar Manor's annual town election, Mayor Burt M. Bromley was re-elected over John N. Torvestad, 197 to 113, and Joseph Terenyi, running for council in the First Ward, defeated Charles W. Bartelmes, 41 to 29, and a one-mill fire-protection tax approved, 115 to 87.

Men smile at my simple reasoning

Whenever the subject of cigarettes comes up, I sit back quietly and let the men explain about the "Toasting" process. Then, if they ask my opinion, I'm pretty frank and tell them why "Luckies please"—me, at least. After all, there's an intimate relationship between a cigarette and my lips—and I'm very sensitive about my personal daintiness. Certainly I enjoy Luckies' delicious tobaccos and their mellow-mildness—but the comforting purity of "Toasting" is what I prize almost above everything else. And that is a woman's reason for saying "Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"

Chromium Set For Bedroom Newest Note

Cocktail Stake May Be Planted in Garden at Five o'Clock.

By The Meanderer.

The Meanderer ambled down G street in a leisurely sort of way. There was the usual crowd hurrying to and fro. There were the usual displays on either side. Here she was doing the usual thing. She stopped disconsolately and leaned against a plate glass window. A passing shopper gazed therein, turned in her tracks, and looked closer. Another shopper tarried a moment, and then several others. Feeling the surge of new life, the Meanderer joined the ranks and stood, pressing her nose against the glass.

She saw a bedroom set which seized her fancy and sent her scurrying into the store to make inquiries. The set was in modernistic design. The beds themselves were trim and square-cut, made entirely of steel. They had a French wood finish in two tones of gray. The chromium trim on the head and foot was offset by a narrow maroon stripe. A small table designed especially to match stood near the beds.

"With such an impetus as this," said the Meanderer to herself, "I will go far and wide in my search today. Here is something new—now for something novel." Around the corner and up the street she flew on the wings of the wind. Success! She found a studio couch with a storage compartment. This is an ideal piece for a small apartment. At night it might be opened up to make twin beds. In the daytime it might serve as a lounge. Always it would be a place to keep bedding.

At the same store she found an outstanding bargain. On sale for $39.95, a bedroom set included twin poster beds in either walnut or mahogany, two coil springs, two felt mattresses, two feather pillows, a boudoir chair, and night stand. Take it from the Meanderer, shoppers, here's a good chance to get a lot for little. With the addition of an extra piece you could furnish a room, and still not pass the $50 mark.

If you doubt that a chaise lounge can be a real asset to a lady's boudoir by all means see the one the Meanderer found. It embodies both beauty and comfort. Part of its ornamental value lies in its glazed chintz upholstery of flowered design, and certainly the kapok chair cushion, and tufted back are responsible for the majority of its comfort qualities. Be careful, shopper, for in this instance if you see, you buy.

Seized with the spirit of exploration the Meanderer wandered away from the heart of town and ventured up Connecticut avenue. Surely the gods were with her this day for she had scarcely passed Dupont Circle when her attention was drawn to the small garden of a large store. Her eyes bulged. There was an aluminum cocktail "something" standing on one leg. And as though this wasn't enough, that one leg was thrust into the ground. An amused clerk noticed the lady's consternation. "That," said he, blowing a smoke ring, "is a cocktail stake." The lady forced a smile. "Why, of course it is," she somehow said. "Ideal for a garden," the clerk continued. The lady said nothing, but the Meanderer thought that certainly this clerk was right. One cocktail stake, $4.75.

On the other side of the small garden was the very chair you might want for your terrace. Of hand-hewn cedar with a natural finish, it is somewhat suggestive of a Heppelwhaite model aside from its square cut. Unless appearances deceive, it looked sturdy enough to brave the Washington elements, and that's saying something.

Upstairs in the same store the Meanderer learned that flowers under the table can be more delightful than flowers on the table. Wait, shopper, wait, the Meanderer means it! Not just any table, mind you, but this particular one, anyway. It has a glass top, for one thing. Directly beneath is a small container which lent itself in a charming fashion to a colorful bunch of flowers. Through the transparent top these made a gay background, and what's a tea party without background?

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column in The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 27, or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Little Love

Annie Becza, of Budapest, Finds American Women Work Too Hard.

Here's one for American husbands. American women work too hard, so says the csikszetmartoni Becza, Annie (that's her name and title as she carries it, and it means no more or less than that she's a Hungarian colonel's daughter).

Miss Becza, the csikszetmartoni, in an interview during her recent visit in Yellowstone National Park, said she found many lovely things in the United States to hold her here, but she couldn't remain because there's too much labor and not enough love in the life of the average American woman.

Husbands who come home on the wife's bridge night only to find the house either deserted or overrun with bridge addicts might well pause before replying in indignant vein to the Hungarian beauty.

"In Budapest, my home, woman's life is made up of love, her husband, her children and her home," the colonel's daughter pointed out. "Ah, but here all the women, they are businessmen. In busniess, in science, in politics—even here in your park you have a woman ranger."

Clever Bridesmaid Fits Organdy Gloves

"Organdy gloves!" sighed a bridesmaid at a fashionable country wedding.

"We hunted high and low—none of them fit."

One clever attendant solved this problem. She rinsed the gloves on her hands in tepid water. As they dried, she gently patted and twisted them into a shape that flitted her. But beware, she warns, of pulling and smoothing too much. It parts the threads and gives an ugly ragged look. After a few minutes when her gloves were entirely dry, she pressed them herself. Treat them as if they were spun glass, she says. Use a towel to protect them from the direct heat if your iron is very hot. Aren't they worth the care—those dainty fresh accessories?

75 Children at First Camp Good Will Outing

The summer season began yesterday at Camp Good Will, when 75 children from the Christ Child Society spent the day in wading, games and athletic events.

The Rock Creek Park camp will provide daytime outings during this month and August. Children will be under the supervision of the Playground Department. Lack of funds made it impossible for the Summer Outing Committee of the Community Chest to operate the camp on a 24-hour basis.

Guiding Your Child

A PERFECT DAUGHTER.

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

Ruth is the eldest daughter in a family of six. She is a good and charming girl. Her school record has been exemplary, she is popular with her classmates and captain of the hockey team.

At home she is all that a daughter should be, taking her share of responsibility for the housekeeping and the younger children and, in her mother's absence, caring for her father's comfort with an amusing unconscious imitation of her mother's capable manner.

In her free time she successfully leads a club of small boys whose obstreperousness had put to rout four former successive club leaders.

Ruth's parents are well satisfied with her and compare her favorably with a younger sister. The younger girl pursues her own course, seeking friends of both sexes outside the family circle, choosing studies often in opposition to her parents' wishes, and living generally more outside the family circle than within it.

The outsider looking at these two sisters sees one who, though advanced beyond her years in matters of responsibility, and typifying all the orthodox virtues, is nevertheless significantly immature in one of the most important aspects of developing personality—that of growing independence from the family group.

The other, while lacking in some of her sister's virtues, is taking just this essential step in growth toward adult womanhood.

Unless some kindly accident causes Ruth to turn from her concentration on her family outward toward her own life, it is likely that having been too long a perfect daughter and a little mother, she will miss those experiences which will lead to marriage and the home and children of her own which, with her nature, must be her ideal destiny, and, indeed, her only happy one.

Ultra Smart Costume May Look Foolish

Loveliness and Elegance Often Lost Through Too Much Chic.

By Dare.

It's like the craze that swept the world right after the war. When all women looked alike rear, front and side view. And all women looked top heavy, and certainly anything but charming. Now we are in another craze of sacrificing loveliness for chic. I don't like it, either—and I positively ree-fuse to have anything to do with it!

It all started mildly. The little chic neck scarf, the tiny hat, the cute shoulder width . . . . and then it went on and on. One couturiere had to out-do the other in exaggeration—one actress had to be more "modish" than the other—and sacrifice originality by exaggerating details in the mode, which she thought would be a distinctive thing to do. Until the last time one of these charming ladies sailed for Europe, she looked just like a clown, I think. Pierrot in all his glory of exaggerated melodrama and costume never looked as one of these!

I say I don't like it—and I say it has to stop. New York, or any other big city in the grandest country in the world, is not Hollywood or Palm Beach or Long Island. To wear styles suitable only for summer resorts and semi-tropical climates in a big city is to destroy the very root of elegance upon which the whole art of dressing is built. And another thing, it admits that one had not the time or the means to go out of the city and into the proper environment for wearing these things!

There's a time and a place for everything—the law and order of just harmonious living have to be considered. There may be other ways to destroy all the codes of civilization other than by sartorial paths—but let's not, please, let elegance fall off our backs!

• • • •

Whether you make it of silk or of calico—a dressmaker bathing suit should be included in your bathing suitery. And well made, too, and comfortable and everything. That's what I tell you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet—for which you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post. And in the leaflet is a darling hat and a delightful beach bag—I think they would be adorable in that new transparent silk that looks like glassine paper, or in that gorgeous processed fabric which looks like suede but washes and sheds water and everything.

• • • •

Philippe et Gaston sent me a dress that eptomizes the elegance of the present in Europe—and points to the contrast between a Parisian night and a New York night, if you will pardon my saying so. Elegance is the keynote of Paris—comfort the note of New York. Which is bad, and I am sorry—but I do think it is only a phase.

Au revoir!

Classic Motifs Combined With Modernistic in Graceful Set.

Modern furniture designers are using classic motifs in combination with new furniture lines with results that are admirable, as the above photograph shows.

The restrained lines of the chairs shown, the simple design of the mantel and the austerity of the white lamp shades, have their plainness relieved by the graceful draped curtains suggesting the Directoire period; by the Wedgewood lamp bases from the Adam period, by the classic decoration on the mirror, the tawn-colored curving lines of the table and the brown-mottled decoration on the mantel.

Oyster-white woolen covers the chairs, finished with outlines of brown piping. The curtains are white, washable silk, the Venetian blinds are white-enameled. The walls of the room are cream-colored. Touches of greenery on the mantel in balanced containers of some classic period might be used by the homemaker to good effect, the decorator who planned the classic modern room explained.

This photograph is one of a series of model interior decorating studies which is to appear on the woman's page of The Washington Post, in cooperation with decorators and merchandising executives of Washington.

"CANCER."

It is possible that you will be greatly concerned about the health of some relative or dear friend. News concerning this matter will not be cheering in nature, but you may anticipate that things will take a turn for the better before long. Business activities will seem to be at a standstill; few profits will be taken on this day.

The child born on this July 12 will be unusually wideawake and he will not be so readily fooled as the average little one. He will have some difficulty in overcoming a fear of strangers. Criticism, unkindly given, will force him to withdraw unto himself. Association with friendly children of his own age or thereabouts will do much to bring him out.

If July 12 is the date of your birth, it is probable that you are not an unusually husky individual and that you will not be able to stand work of a physically strenuous nature. Your earthly rewards will come only as the result of steady work and your returns will not be commensurate with the long hours that you devote to your labors.

Born on July 12, you are no doubt devoted to your children and you spend a great deal of time and thought on them. At times you allow yourself to become too concerned about their welfare and on these occasions you are inclined to be meddlesome and interfering. You must learn to draw the line between proper guidance and interference. More than likely you are a good dancer. You enjoy music of a dreamy and sentimental nature. Women born on this date should do well if they seek careers for themselves. They will go far in work that will require them to gain the confidence of men, for these women know how to get along with both sexes.

Successful people born on July 12: Irving T. Bush, president Bush Terminal.

Wave Safety Is Gift of Science To Modern Girl

Tortures of Earlier Days in Fixing Permanent Are Overcome.

Ladies whose loveliness has been enhanced by the process of permanent waving need no longer undergo the tortures of earlier methods. From a process that was tedious and often injurious, it has become one of comparative comfort and assured safety.

The first permanent wavers were the wig makers for theatrical productions. They wound locks of human hair tightly on wooden sticks, and put them into a vat of boiling water to remain nine or ten hours. During this time the sticks swelled and stretched the hair while hot. The result was ringlets, corkscrew ringlets, to be sure, but no longer straight.

Then arose the idea that hair on the human head might be curled as well. This, of course, would have to be done without submitting the customer to a process that would render her unable to enjoy her wave at all. After considerable experimentation the first machine was set up with iron heaters that weighed over five pounds each.

The first chemicals to be used were of such a harsh nature that many heads of hair were temporarily and often permanently ruined. There were accidents caused by faulty insulation of heaters, and ignorance of the operators. Customers who escaped without actual injury had permanent waves, it is true, but they were far from lovely. It was not so long ago that the best of these waves was a thing of crimps and fuzzes.

The modern wave can be given in as short a time as an hour and a half. For individuals who desire more privacy than a beauty salon affords, machineless waves are offered, which may be used in the home. Actresses find it convenient to have their waves put in backstage between rehearsals. Business women with limited time need not interrupt their activities to spend long hours in a stuffy booth.

Gone are the days of the scorched scalp and the painful moments spent in search of a thing of beauty, but hardly a joy forever. Now the finished waves are lovely enough to rival nature's own.

Few women realize that the beauty of the waves and the ease with which they are obtained are due to long scientific research by men who have made a specialty of one of the greatest aids to feminine charm. Heaters are no longer dangerous, chemicals are no longer injurious and milady may submit herself to an operator without taking her life in her hands.

New Shiny Make-Up Very Hard to Wear

Less frequently is the anxious query "Is my nose shiny?" heard from women who care about their personal appearance. Soon they may be asking "Is my face shiny enough?"

For the laws of the make-up world have decreed that faces shall shine. Aspirants to beauty are buying creams and lotions that tend to give the face a shiny appearance. Many of the questions cosmeticians are called upon to answer nowadays concern this new shiny make-up.

With the shiny make-up little or no powder is used. A pink liquid that contains powder is applied so that the drying liquid deposits a small amount of powder on the skin.

Rouge also is sparingly used, if at all. But the eyes are artfully emphasized with shadows and eyelash darkeners, while lips are heavily scarlet.

Sometimes a shiny-make-up is a sun-tan shade, but most of the beauties who have decided that their faces may shine prefer the natural color of their complexions. Rosy women who need no rouge are attempting the revolutionary glowing facial treatment, but paler types of women are regarding it askance.

Rosslyn Civic League Approves License Cut

Unanimous indorsement was given the resolution recently passed by the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce advocating a flat reduction of automobile license tags to $5 by the Rosslyn Precint Civic League at its meeting held last night.

County Manager Roy S. Braden spoke of the tentative plans which have been worked out by the county board for installation of a county-wide sewerage system. He stated that nothing definite can be given out at this time pending assurance that the county can obtain funds from the Federal Government.

The Buy-Word

Cold, red, succulent—the watermelon comes to the top of the list of fresh foods for summer menus. They are arriving in Washington by the thousands from the Carolinas. One dealer alone in the Southwest market has sold 5,000 mellons in the last 24 hours. Watermelon prices have come down to a retail level of 35 cents. So plentiful are they that Negro boys on the wharves are making local color of themselves as they enjoy a half or quarter of a melon without the aid of forks or knives.

Peaches of the freestone variety from North Carolina are beginning to come ferely. They sell for about $1.25 a half bushel. These peaches are of good flavor, but are not suggested for preserving, as the price of the same grade peaches will be considerably lower in a few weeks.

Ridgeway cautaloupes are due next week from the Carolinas, according to a dealer in wholesale fruits and vegetables. The Ridgeway melon, cantaloupe fanciers know, is the choicest variety grown in this section of the country.

A sizable kitchen towel may be made of the bag that holds 12 pounds of sugar of a standard brand. The towel bag is a new container offered by the sugar merchants. When the sugar is used, the housewife may easily rip the seams of the bag and add a towel to her kitchen supplies.

Amos Parrish Solves Vexing Fall Problem

Wardrobe Problems of Men Also Get Attention of Expert.

Milady's fall wardrobe should be less of a problem after Monday, July 17, when Amos Parrish, fashion authority of note, starts his daily articles on the Woman's Page of The Washington Post.

When the middle of July rolls around, women begin to plan fall clothes. Mr. Parrish's features will make this planning a pleasure. Everything, from the fur coat that's such a temptation to purchase at midsummer prices, to the smartest of hats and frocks will be described Fashions that will be worn by chic women this fall will be detailed and helpful suggestions made.

High fashion notes for madame are only half the story, though. His majesty, the man of the family, comes in for serious attention from this famous style expert. What to wear and how to wear it are just as important to the masculine as to the feminine contingent, Mr. Parrish believes.

"Men are really fashion-conscious," he says. "Although it is popularly believed that men's fashions change little, and that the average man is content to wear the same suit from season to season, the contrary is true. Men want to know what is new. They want to wear clothes that are smart and up-to-the-minute."

What About It, Dad?

By Mary Brook Lucas

(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service. Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

"Several weeks ago Dad promised to take us to the fair and we haven't gone yet," pouts Judy, as she sinks into a lawn chair. She wears a garden smock of pale pink cotton crepe, navy blue duck trousers with a wide stripe down each leg, and digging gloves with wicked looking metal claws.

"Don't fret, dear," soothes Mother. "You know Dad has been busy—try to be patient. I'm going over to the club for luncheon. Why don't you come along?" Mother's white handkerchief linen suit is embroidered in navy blue dots. The large cuffs and neckline tabs are of white pique.

Instead of the club, Judy decides to go down to the store and buy a new dress. It's a pretty good cure for the "blues." Her suit of tobacco twine, the kind from the Southern tobacco bundles, is dyed the new shade called "orange peel." Handknit and crochet are both being featured by exclusive shops.

In the deb shop Judy is somewhat cheered up by this organdie frock in lemon yellow, as crisp and fresh as a clump of daisies. Gorgeous flaming field poppies trim the bodice. The many shoulder ruffles on the tiny jacket with peplum, are simply bound in the self material.

Tomorrow—A Robe for Judy.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

RUDYARD KIPLING, literary idol of the Anglo-Saxon world and one of England's greatest authors, will make his radio debut early this morning in an international broadcast from London over WRC. Accounting for time differences, he will be heard at 7:55 a. m.

Mr. Kipling will propose a toast to the Canadian Authors Association in whose honor the Royal Society of Literature is giving the luncheon which will be broadcast. Two other literary celebrities to be present will be G. K. Chesterton and the Marquis of Crewe, a noted bibliophile.

Those who have read much of Kipling's work will doubtless remember that he was the author, in 1901, of one of the first fiction stories dealing with the then new wireless. The story, "Wireless," was published in Traffics and Discoveries, and it ranks as one of his best.

It was like old times to hear the voice of former President Hoover in connection with the San Francisco Bay bridge dedication ceremonies Sunday.

This was the first appearance of the former President at a large public ceremony since he relinquished the Presidency. Due to the uncertainty of his attending, no advance notice was given to the networks, and his appearance came as a surprise to those who happened to be listening in.

MRS. EDWARD MacDOWELL, widow of the famous and beloved American composer, will be interviewed tonight at 6:30 o'clock by the dean of musical commentators, Milton J. Cross. (WJZ network, but not WMAL). It is always a rare pleasure to hear Mrs. MacDowell speak in the frank and stimulating way which characterizes all that she says and does. America should feel deeply indebted to her for her invaluable help and encouragement to the developing of creative art, music and writing. She has done this by carrying on the work of the MacDowell Colony at Peterboro, N. H.

Only one gifted with the optimism, steadfast courage and sympathetic wisdom of Mrs. MacDowell could have guided the colony through 25 years, filled, especially in this depression, with problems of untold difficulty. She has done this in the face of serious illness and great financial sacrifice. Now that the MacDowell Colony has demonstrated its worth, it is unthinkable that, through lack of adequate financial assistance, those years of sacrifice and devotion should be wasted and the work of the colony not carried on.

Mrs. MacDowell's appearance tonight will be as a result of the personal interest in the colony of Frank J. Black, general musical director of the National Broadcasting Company. Mr. Black has done many fine things since assuming charge of N. B. C.'s musical destinies, of which this is typical.

Judge Florence Allen, of Cleveland, will be heard addressing the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Conference in Chicago over WRC at 1:30 o'clock.

Miss Allen was born in Salt Lake City in 1884, began the practice of law in Cleveland in 1914, was assistant prosecutor of Cuyahoga County, judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the same county, and in 1922 was elected a judge in the Supreme Court of Ohio.

THE American Legion in cooperation with Radio Joe will stage a "job auction" over Station WMAL at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Samuel Rose, the legion's national radio officer, writes:

"Now you are wondering what kind of a brainstorm this is. The idea is to find jobs for unemployed veterans and it is not going to be done through a lot of speeches. During the course of the program 'Radio Joe' will read the names of veterans with their qualifications. You and I will be invited to telephone immediately to Station WMAL if we have a job for them. As fast as the calls come in they will be announced on the program and the accepted man will be crossed off the list."

Sephen Foster's early talent, which at the age of six puzzled his parents, will be dramatized with incidental music in the second of the series depicting the story of his life over WRC at 7:30 p. m. Born of middle-class Scotch-Irish parents in Pittsburgh, Pa., his surroundings offered little encouragement for the study of music. John Tasker Howard, authority on American music, will act as narrator.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will don his sea-going togs to accompany Capt. Hugh Barrett Dobbs on the mythical voyage of the Ship of Joy, during the broadcast over the WEAF network (but not WRC) at 9:30 p. m.

The program will originate in the observation tower of the Empire State Building in New York, adding another unusual studio to the list of those used for Capt. Dobbsie's programs.

While broadcasting from the West Coast, Capt. Dobbs at one time took a ship several hundred miles into the Pacific deeps, and there staged his Ship of Joy program. In contrast to this, he and Gov. Smith will broadcast high above New York's millions in the world's highest man-made structure.

The observation tower of the Empire State Building will be transformed into a replica of a promenade of an ocean liner.

Betty Barthell, the blue-eyed singer from Tennessee, will be introduced in "Meet the Artist," over WJSV at 5:00 p. m. She also will be heard in her own song, "Anything Your Little Heart Desires."

A ROUND-TABLE discussion of the fine points of chess, as played with living chessmen on the 68-foot-square board at the Century of Progress Exposition, will be broadcast by several experts over WMAL, at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Alexander Alekhine, present world champion chess player, will lead the way in the unraveling of some of the intricacies of the world's brainiest game, assisted by Jose Capablanca, former international champion; Frank J. Marshall, American title holder for the past 20 years, and Edward Lasker, jr., son of the former world master. Dr. A. Rueb, of Holland, president of the International Federation of Chess Masters, will preside.

A new type of song broadcast, in which all announcements are made in music, will be on the air over WRC, at 6:15 tonight. Arlene Jackson heads the short revue supported by the Three Scamps, male trio, and an orchestra conducted by Al Gaber.

In the new Short Revue series Miss Jackson and the trio join in modern interpretations of the latest hit songs and ballads. Al Gaber, the leader, has had long experience in picture, theater and recording work.

Ground will be broken for the Italian Building in Radio City, N. Y., this morning at 10:15 o'clock. The ceremonies will be heard over WMAL.

Antonio Mosconi, former minister of finance in the Mussolini government, will be the special envoy of the Italian premier, and Nelson Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, jr., will represent American interests. Col. Arthur Woods, president of Rockefeller Center, will preside.

The Italian Building, on Fifth avenue, between West Fiftieth and West Fifty-first streets, will be the third of the international centers to be erected, the British and French buildings now being nearly completed.

DEEP RIVER—languorous melodies of olden days in the cotton fields and canebrakes, sung by Willard Robison, "evangelist of rhythm," will be heard again in a new series beginning at 9 o'clock tonight over WMAL.

Robison wandered for many years through the deep South and the crude settlements of the new Southwest with his first Deep River Orchestra of half a dozen pieces, playing for dances and entertainments at night and learning the traditional songs of the country from the old folks on plantations and in lonesome cabins in the hills. Many of these melodies have become nationally known through Robison's presentation of them, and during his recent vacation he orchestrated others in the individual style which has made the Deep River music unique among radio programs.

Irvin S. Cobb has just been called to task for his pronunciation over the air of "coyote" by a fervent disciple of the Old West. He has been told that the correct way to say it is "ki-ot." His informant adds feelingly that "the coyote is not so musical as the jackass, but he has his tender feelings. To be called out of his name is humiliating—it blunts his finer sensibilities."

ENGINEERS, preparing for the broadcast of Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt's Red and White Ball, charity affair to be held next Saturday night at the Vanderbilts' Oakland Farms, near Newport, R. I., are busy making one of the most unusual installations ever called for for such an affair. Radio lines are being installed to connect with Station WEAN, 25 miles away in Providence, the nearest outlet.

The ball is to be held in the Riding Ring at Oakland Farms, a huge armory-like indoor arena, which is the largest private riding ring in the country. It was built in 1907 by Alfred Vanderbilt and since then it has been the scene of many society horse shows and riding exhibitions. With a dance orchestra at each end of the 100x200-foot arena and a stage for entertainers at its center, a complicated system of wiring is necessary for both the broadcast pick-up and the public address system.

R. C. A. Air Permit Is Called Illegal

D. C. Man Asks Cancellation for Violation of Radio Monopoly Clause.

Cancellation of radio broadcasting permits issued by the Federal Radio Commission to the Radio Corporation of America and its subsidiaries was sought in the District Supreme Court yesterday by C. Wood Arthur, 1220 I street northwest. He requested that the court issue a mandamus to the commission directing such action.

Mr. Wood based his suit on the grounds that the R. C. A. had been guilty of violating section 13 of the radio act, which provides that the commission should refuse to license a station, or to give any person or firm a license if that party previously had been adjudged to have monopolized unlawfully radio communication through the manufacture or sale of radio instruments.

The suit alleges that the Federal court of Delaware found R. C. A., in the matter of the sale of radio tubes, guilty of a practice that "tended to create a monopoly." Despite this, the papers charged, renewal permits were issued the corporation in 1931.

Dollars Climb, Regaining Part Of Late Losses

Recovery Is Attributed to Covering in Europe; Canadians Down.

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—The American dollar turned sharply on its European and domestic detractors today and recovered a large portion of its recent heavy losses in foreign exchange markets.

The dollar, in terms of the French gold franc, was valued at approximately 71.3 cents at the close of business today, compared with 69.2 cents yesterday, and 81.4 cents a month ago.

The British pound sterling, off around 6 cents during most of the day, suffered a late relapse and finished with a net decline of 14¾ cents at a cable rate of $4.65.

French Franc Drops.

The French franc dropped .18 of a cent at 5½ cents; Dutch guilders slumped 1.83 cents to 56.67 cents; Swiss francs were off .95 of a cent at 27.20 cents, and Belgian belgas gave up .65 of a cent at 19.60 cents.

Canadian dollars were down 1 cent at 94¼ cents and Japanese yen recorded a similar decline at 28¾ cents.

German marks and the Scandinavians were each about a cent in arrears. Shanghai dollars were the only gainers, advancing ½ to 29½ cents in response to the firmness of bar silver.

Reversal of Rates.

The reversal of dollar rates was attributed largely to short covering by European speculators following the statement of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer, in the House of Commons, that the drastic drop of the dollar was not warranted, but was "an unnatural, artificial phenomenon" caused chiefly by speculation.

Chamberlain expressed his belief that the violent depreciation of American currency probably would reverse itself, at least by autumn.

Reports in some quarters that leading banks, with the approval of the Washington administration, had assisted England to put the brakes on the rapid dollar slide were not confirmed. It was pointed out that the rally was due principally to the covering of short commitments on the theory that foreign exchanges had gone too high for comfort.

Silver Prices Jump To New High Ground

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Bar silver and silver futures advanced to new highs for the year today, apparently in response to reports from the London Economic Conference that Senator Pittman's subcommittee was going forward vigorously with its work on proposals for controlling the world market for the metal.

Bar silver, down to as low as 25 cents an ounce not many months ago, gained ⅝ cent, at 27⅞ cents an ounce, while future contracts were up 7 to 8 tenths of a cent an ounce in unusually active trading.

Bonds Remain Unchanged as Dealing Reacts

Halting Is Laid to Loans of Secondary Grade; Sales, $17,094,000.

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Reactionary tendencies of some recently buoyant secondary loans halted the advance in the bond market today and prices generally mulled about rather irregularly.

Sales totaled $17,094,000, par value, which was around yesterday's aggregate, and the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was unchanged.

Business and industrial news continued optimistic. The market's hesitation was attrbiuted partly to profit taking based on the uncertainties of stocks.

A few specialties reflected special influences. Loans of Armour & Co. improved in sympathy with rising grains. Studebaker 6s jumped 5 points on reports that the company, now in receivership, was showing substantial earnings. Vanadium 5s were up 3⅛ points. Postal Telegraph 5s advanced 1½ and Western Union issues a point or more. Cleveland Short Line 4½s stepped up 5⅛ points.

Losers of 1 to around 2 points included some bonds of Alleghany Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., Chicago & Northwestern, Illinois Central, International Great Northern, Mead Corp., N. Y. Central, Frisco, Warner Bros. and Wabash.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Italian Government 7s got up more than 3 points and the Belgians and Germans rallied a point or more. The rally of the American dollar in foreign exchange centers, however, caused some selling of British, French and Swiss loans at declines of 1 to more than 2 points.

United States Government securities were dull but fractionally firmer.

London—Trading on the stock exchange was more quiet today. Gilt-edged securities were a firm feature on reinvestment buying, but further profit-taking weakened most of the other sections, including transatlantic issues and Argentine rails. The closing was uncertain.

Paris—Owing to the hesitancy in Wall street, weakness registered in London metals and the lack of encouragement elsewhere, prices on the bourse suffered heavy losses. The market closed heavy.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse held steady today.

Pivotal Stocks Droop, Causing Market Loss

List of 90 Closes 1.2 Points Down as Dollar Shows Fresh Strength; Sales Volume Totals 5,233,615 Shares.

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Stocks declined the bait of soaring grain markets today. So-called pivotal issues first sulked, then firmed a little and finally drooped, although alcohols popped up zestfully and a few specialties played along with the rise in the "wet" issues.

Fresh strength in dollar exchange was a prominent development of the financial day, one that seemed to have some effect on the speculative mind. Leading industrials and utilities traveled a generally narrow path, offering good resistance to sales but obviously uninterested in further experiments with the advance. The tone weakened slightly toward closing time and net losses of a point or more were numerous.

"Repeal" issues, despite their sensational gains of the past two months, repaid their sponsors with a good run. National Distillers and U. S. Industrial Alcohol jumped 9 to 10, closing under the best. American Commercial, Crown Cork, Owens-Illinois and Hazel Atlas Glass were strong. Commercial Solvents, Celanese, Goodyear, Penick & Ford, Gulf States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Vanadium, Crucible Steel, Manhattan Shirt, National Biscuit, Curtiss Wright "A," Firestone and Beech-nut were gainers to the extent of 1 to around 3.

On the other hand, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, General Electric, Allied Chemical, Southern Pacific, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, North American, Radio, Loew's, Du Pont, and American Tobacco "B" finished in the neighborhood of 1 to 1½ lower. Rails put on an early afternoon demonstration which tended to help the entire market for a time, but carriers finished somewhat raggedly. Union Pacific was up 3¼ net. Sales totaled 5,233,615 shares.

The day's trade news added little to current appraisals of the situation in domestic industry. Car loadings reports for last week reflected the let-down incident to the Fourth of July week, but improvement over a year ago was sustained. Strength in many steel shares was apparently in anticipation of favorable operating estimates. In this connection American Metal Market said production would presumably level off after its big rise, but that "no material decrease should be expected before next month." The review added, however: "It will require a demand from the three lines now inactive—building, railroads and oil and gas—to bring about a fresh upward movement."

Stocks.

Pivotal issues dropped, and after rallying, reacted and drove the market down 1.2 points. Fresh strength of the dollar was a feature. Sales totaled 5,233,615 shares.

Bonds.

Reactionary tendencies set in as secondary loans halted the advance, and the market remained unchanged at Monday's level. Sales totaled $17,094,000.

Curb.

Trading moved through uncertainties and prices were irregular at the close. Distilleries led in popularity. Sales increased to 859,000 shares.

General crop shortage news and public speculative buying again sent wheat prices skyward. Rye was leader in the advance of grains. It jumped 8¼ to 9 cents. July wheat sold at 1.04½; May at 1.13½.

Cotton.

Fluctuations were irregular, and after reaching new high ground, reactions drove the market down 1 to 10 points. October sold at 10:83; July, at 10:50. Liverpool reported prices 14 points higher.

Rubber.

Futures closed easy. July sold at 7.40; September, at 7.65.

Lead and Zinc Miners Allowed Pay Increase

Miami, Okla., July 11 (A.P.).—The base pay of lead and zinc miners in the tri-State district was advanced 25 cents daily, effective today, as a result of a $2.50 advance in zinc concentrates last week.

Most major producers were expected to meet the advance, which brings the bottom pay for machine men to $3. Shovelers will obtain 8 cents a can, an increase of one-half cent.

This is the third increase in six weeks. Wages first were advanced when ore reached $25 a ton and again when the price became $30.

Prices on Curb Irregular With Distilleries Up

Hiram Walker Rises 5 Points as Sales Mount to 859,000 Shares.

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—The curb market today moved through a session of uncertain movements to an irregular close.

Prices were mixed at the opening but firmed later under bullish activity in distillery issues, but the advance wavered as industrial and utility leaders turned reactionary in the final trading.

Hiram Walker showed a gain of nearly 5 points in heavy turnover, while advances of around 3 were recorded in Canadian Industrial Alcohol and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams. In the industrial list Parker Rustproof extended recent gains by 4 points, while A. O. Smith was in good demand.

Aluminum Co. of America closed a shade lower after having gained nearly 2 at one time. Safety Car Heating lost 4 points in a small turnover, while Swift & Co. was slightly reactionary.

Closing losses of a point or more were shown in Newmont, American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Humble Oil, Standard of Ohio and American Light & Traction. Transfers totaled 859,000 shares compared with 774,000 yesterday.

Capital Moves To Get Meeting Of U.S. Bankers

Credit Association Holds Election; Tastet Again Heads Group.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Preparations for bringing next year's conventions of the American Bankers Association and the American Institute of Banking to Washington were begun yesterday. The council of administration, District of Columbia Bankers Association, directed George O. Vass, president of the association, to invite the first-named organization to hold its 1934 convention here.

The council also approved the action of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, educational section of the American Bankers Association, in extending an invitation to the institute to hold its convention in Washington in 1934.

The convention of the American Institute of Banking was held this year in Chicago in June, and the convention of the American Bankers Association will be held in that city in September. It is expected that if its convention comes to Washington next year, it will be held in September or early in October. The last convention of the American Bankers Association held here was in 1920.

Thirty-second Annual Meeting.

The next convention of the American Institute of Banking will be its thirty-second annual meeting. It will be the first time for that organization to meet in Washington. Mr. Vass stated that the Greater National Capital committee is actively cooperating in the efforts to bring these two conventions to Washington and to provide entertainment for their delegates while here.

At the annual election meeting of the Washington Association of Credit Men held yesterday, at the Hamilton Hotel, Waldo J. Tastet, treasurer and director of Fries, Beall & Sharp Co., was reelected president of the association. Mr. Tastet has been active in the association's work for more than ten years. He has been a trustee and treasurer of its adjustment bureau since 1927. Mr. Tastet's work has been outstanding during the past year of difficult credit and business conditions, and the association by reelecting him has honored one of the youngest credit executives in the country.

Hewlett Is Reelected.

Louis M. Hewlett, secretary and assistant treasurer of Grifith-Consumers Co., was reelected vice president of the association, after serving in that capacity for the past year. Mr. Hewlett has been a director of the association for many years and has taken an active part in the work ever since its organization.

Directors elected at the annual meeting include Mrs. E. J. Hess, E. B. Adams Co.; Henry P. Ames, Murphy & Ames, Inc.; Max Dinkin, L. S. Jullien, Inc.; Roy M. Mosher, The Shade Shop; Joseph Reichgut, Maloney Concrete Co., Inc.; G. M. Zirkle, Wilkins Rogers Milling Co.; Stuart S. Ogilvie, Second National Bank; Addison Boren, jr., Otis Elevator Co., and G. H. Markward, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

Directors who are still serving unexpired terms are: Charles W. Clayton, F. P. May Hardware Co.; Ligter T. Watts, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; Frank W. White, National Electrical Supply Co.; Thorpe G. Drain, Rosslyn Steel & Cement Co., and Maurice H. Mazo, Mazo-Lerch Co., Inc.

Wheat Jumps Again as Crop Losses Climb

Public Speculative Buying Is Aid to Rise; Rye Leads Advance.

Chicago, July 11 (A.P.).—Acute general crop shortage, so complete as almost to preclude substituting one kind of grain for another, sent grain prices spinning excitedly skyward today anew.

Fresh advances ran as high as nearly 12 cents a bushel, on top of maximum jumps of 9 cents the day previous. All deliveries of both bread-making grains, wheat and rye, soared to $1.00 a bushel and above, with wheat up to $1.14.

Immense public speculative buying swept everything before it, and despite enormous selling for profits the markets closed not far from the day's peaks, with recent high-price records outdone in every one of the grain pits except oats.

Rye Leads Advance.

Rye, which has long been regarded as unduly cheap compared with wheat, and has no handicap at present such as the new 30-cent tax on wheat, made the biggest gain today, 11¾ cents.

In a flurried finish, rye closed 8¼ to 9 cents net higher for the day; wheat, 3½ to 4⅛ up; corn, 2½ to 2⅞ advanced; oats, ⅝ to 1¼ gain, and provisions showing a rise of 17 to 40 cents.

Throwing wheat and other grains into a furious advance as soon as trading began was the latest Government crop report showing that the United States 1933 yield of wheat would be under domestic requirements by more than 100,000,000 bushels, the smallest crop in 40 years, and that the corn crop would be smaller than any harvested in 30 years. Outstanding in the immediate rush of prices upward was the fact that for the first time in a long while rye emulated wheat, and crossed to above $1 a bushel. Many an occasion has witnessed a greater uproar in the grain pits than was the case today, but rarely, if ever, have the nerves of traders been strung to a higher pitch, or has the rise of prices shown as great a degree of celerity.

Forecast Aids Upturn.

Rye prices were especially stimulated by the Government forecast pointing equally with wheat to a rye yield substantially below domestic requirements.

Even today's maximum upturn of rye took that grain to a peak 10 cents a bushel below the apex for wheat, $1.14. Some of the disparity was accounted for by general knowledge that spring wheat had suffered material further damage since the Government data was gathered.

Although the rye market made the most spectacular gains in price today, the volume of trading in rye was of kindergarten extent compared with wheat or corn. At times, relatively few executions of orders were possible in the rye pit. Scarcity of offerings and eager bidding formed the rule. Action of wheat mainly guided traders in all the grains, with the markets most of the time moving in unison, despite the wildness of trading.

Provisions went sharply higher with hog values and with grains.

Winnipeg, Man., July 11 (A.P.). Bull traders ran wild today in the local grain market and wheat futures at the close were 4¼ to 4⅝ cents higher.

July options stood at 88 cents and all other wheat futures ranged above the 90-cent level, October at 90⅞, December 92⅛ and May at 96¾.

Bulls based their enthusiastic performance on the weather and a United States crop report which indictated the smallest yield in years. Further stimulus was provided by export business of about 500,000 bushels.

Ottawa, Ont., July 11 (A.P.).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics announced today that the Canadian spring wheat crop was 23 per cent below the average on June 30 of this year, compared with 1 per cent below the average at the same time last season.

London, July 11 (A.P.).—Experts of the Danubian wheat producing countries and Poland met today with F. L. MacDougall, of Australia; Carlos Brebbia, of Argentina, and Frederick E. Murphy, of the United States, and discussed the production and export figures of the two groups.

The American and his two colleagues represented the big four wheat growing States, which are trying to reach an international agreement on restriction of acreage.

It was stated that today's discussions did not reach a stage where a figure for European maximum exports was actually suggested, but that preliminary conversations revealed that views were not too divergent. The discussions will be continued tomorrow.

After an arrangement has been reached with the European producing states, the representatives of the big four will approach the European importing states with a view to seeking an increase of their consumption of foreign wheat.

North Carolina Cotton Farmers Get Warning

Raleigh, N. C., July 11 (A.P.).—Charles A. Sheffield, acting State director of the cotton reduction campaign, today warned some 74,000 North Carolina farmers who have borrowed money from the Government that they "may find it hard to use such sources of credit in the future" if they are cotton farmers and do not cooperate in crop retirement.

Sheffield said Cully A. Cobb, in charge of the cotton reduction campaign, had notified him that his extension forces were to be prepared to make a check of all borrowers from the Government who failed to cooperate in signing reduction contracts.

Exports of Grains Up 529,000 Bushels

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 971,000 bushels against 442,000 bushels during the previous week, and 741,000 bushels during the corresponding week of last year.

Commerce Department figures yesterday gave the following comparison for last week's exports and for those of the week before: Wheat 2,000 bushels against 1,000; barley 179,000 against 323,000; corn, 780,000 against 115,000; oats, 10,000 against 3,000. No exports of rye were reported for either week.

Daily U. S. Production of Oil Rises to 2,738,060 Barrels

Tulsa, Okla., July 11 (A.P.).—Scattered increases brought the crude oil production of the United States up 21,840 barrels to 2,738,060 barrels daily last week, despite a reduction of 40,235 barrels in Oklahoma output, the Oil and Gas Journal reports.

Oklahoma production dropped from 613,840 to 573,605 barrels a day.

Texas fields increased their flow from 1,271,337 to 1,312,798, with east Texas contributing an increase from 701,340 to 732,550 barrels.

Kansas had its highest daily output in years, with a daily average of 131,600 barrels, an increase of 15,020 barrels.

California increased production from 474,500 to 484,750 barrels.

Eastern fields were down 2,000 barrels to 110,000 barrels a day.

In the Rocky Mountain area production fell from 75,550 to 73,660 barrels daily.

Rock Island's Plan May Be Opposed

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Indications that holders of a large amount of securities of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. may refuse to support the reorganization plans of the management were seen today in the formation of five committees to represent owners of parent and subsidiary company bonds.

Formation of the committees followed an announcement by Charles Hayden, chairman of the Rock Island board, that a banking group had been appointed by the management to prepare a plan of readjustment.

God's Acre Cotton Hit By Plowing Up Plan

Anderson, S. C., July 11 (A.P.).—They're going to plow up half of "God's Acre" of cotton on the farms around Midway Presbyterian Church, Anderson County, as a means of cooperating in the cotton reduction plan. Each year, farmer members of the church agree to plant and tend an acre of cotton for the church. These small projects known as "God's Acre," finance the church entirely.

"Our Government is engaged in a great cooperative enterprise to help us to help ourselves," the congregation agreed in instructing the church treasurer to sign up 50 per cent of the crop under the reduction plan.

Cotton Rallies Trimmed Into Small Losses

October Sells at 10.83 as General Market Drops 1 to 10 Points.

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Fluctuations in cotton were irregular today. Rallies from an early decline which carried prices into new high ground for the movement were followed by reactions.

October contracts, after selling off to 10.79 during the early trading, advanced to 10.98 or 9 points net higher, but eased off under renewed realizing or liquidation and closed at 10:83. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 1 to 10 points.

Opening unchanged to 5 points higher the market in the first hour eased under realizing or liquidation combined with some Southern and scattered local selling.

Decline of December.

December declined from 11.08 to 10.96, with active months generally showing net losses of 9 to 10 points. The market firmed in the late trading but the improvement met a renewal of liquidation with closing quotations 13 to 15 points off from the best.

The rally in the dollar appeared to have an unsettling effect on sentiment, and the market seemed a little more sensitive to orders either way.

Exports today, 20,798, making 8,091,447 so far this season. Port receipts, 14,278. U. S. port stocks, 3,310,295.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was strong and active today on increased speculative buying, promoted by the sharply higher lard and grain markets, the advance in crude oil and a belief that oil prices were out of line with competing products.

The Census Bureau report will be issued tomorrow with the trade anticipating consumption during June of between 330,000 and 350,000 barrels. Higher Prices Sugar Pact Is Nearly Ready Committee Fixes Tentatively Output of Areas on Curb Plan.

(Associated Press.)

The draft agreement to stabilize higher sugar prices and limit production to the American market demands yesterday approached completion.

The sugar conference central committee, by a majority vote, decided tentatively upon the following annual allotments of the domestic consumption total:

Domestic beet sugar, 1,525,000 tons; Louisiana cane, 250,000 tons; Florida cane, 60,000 tons; Hawaii, 975,000 tons; Philippine Islands, 955,920 tons; Puerto Rico, 875,000 tons; Virgin Islands, 9,080 tons.

Although a definite quota for Cuba has not yet been fixed, the figure most discussed has been 1,760,000 tons, or about the same as was imported last year from the island.

All totals are figured in short tons, making the proposed Philippine allotment about equal with the 850,000 long tons to be allowed the islands for five years after establishment of the Commonwealth government provided for in the independence act.

Domestic quotas practically are equal to estimated production for 1933-34, but exceed previous yields.

Hawaii's quota is 5 per cent below production estimates, as is that of Puerto Rico. The Philippines have been reduced 32 per cent of the 1933-34 estimated crop total and the decision has been protested vigorously by former Senator Harry B. Hawes, committee member representing Philippine producers.

Virgin Islands Quota.

The Virgin Islands would be given a 50 per cent increase. The committee, which has worked for two weeks preparing the agreement, comprises representatives of all the sugar producing sections mentioned except Cuba. The chairman, Dr. John Lee Coulter, tariff commission member, said the agreement still was incomplete, and no official pronouncement has been made concerning the tentative quota.

Whereupon, an energetic denouncement of the draft agreement was made today by Thomas L. Chadbourne, of New York, author of the 1931 international sugar agreement, who said that while the plan was being drafted in the name of an agricultural relief act, actually it was "a refiners' plan to regulate the available raw sugar supply for their melt so that they may always command and order the sale of raw sugar to themselves at such times and in such volume as they may direct without the need of carrying stocks or exercising ordinary business foresight."

Dan River Cotton Mills Allowed Pay Increase

Danville, Va., July 11 (A.P.).—The Dan River cotton mills, largest plant of its kind in the South, will hire between 800 and 1,200 additional workers within the next 30 days at a minimum wage of $12, as a result of the new industrial code, Robert E. West, president of the company, said today.

Mr. West said he was not prepared to comment on the code in any detail until he saw the final draft which has in it some amendments to the plan as drawn up by the committee representing the textile industry.

Previews Accorded Impending Films—Glee Club Opens—Circus Coming

Splendid Casts Add Brilliance To Vivid Plays

Singers From U. of Illinois Score Hit at Fox; Tent Shows in August.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Washington's midsummer amusement seekers may confidently look forward to the theater week that begins this Friday for a quality of screen entertainment that will rate considerably above the seasonal average.

The dramatic desks of the Capital are already prepared to vouch for the excellence of two of the new offerings—"Double Harness," coming to RKO-Keith's, which was previewed by a small but discriminating audience of flaw-pickers Monday midnight, and "Storm at Daybreak," the next Palace attraction, similarly vouchsafed a private peek by approximately the same audience in the labyrinthine projection room of the Loew interests in the Fox Theater Building yesterday afternoon.

This Fox backstage projection room, incidentally, is possessed of all the easy accessibility of the tip of Mount Everest. By starting the climb early the night before, you come out in front of its screen in time for a late lunch next day!

But about the pictures.

The only similarity between "Double Harness" and "Storm at Daybreak" is to be found in the high quality of artistry that characterizes them both. The stories, treatment, direction and photography are totally different in all other respects.

Perhaps to the initiate the divergence may best be summarized by the statement that the one was directed by John Cromwell; the other by Richard Boleslavsky, the man who made "Rasputin and the Empress."

In terms of literature, that would be vaguely comparable to setting up a work by Dickens against one by Alexandre Dumas—or, perhaps still better, one of Arnold Bennett's stories against a romance by Rafael Sabatini.

"Double Harness"—which, by the way, will not be minutely reviewed here at this time—is as sound a piece of craftsmanship as has come along in months. It is distinctly a drama of situation; a plain statement in dramatic terms of cause and effect, as opposed to the more argumentative forms of discursive drama that run so ruthlessly to dialogue and refrain so assiduously from any sort of action.

It unfolds a straightforward domestic tale, precipitated by incidents of a most devious nature. A philanderer who deems "love" an ephemeral thing at best, and a heady young woman who looks upon love as a woman's "business," attempt to hit it off in "double harness," with results that are plausible, provocative and extremely diverting.

There are many touches of subtle humor in the dialogue, but Edward Poor Montgomery, the author, at no time has permitted himself to be carried away on a flood of verbiage. There are no more lines in the play than there need to be to give point to a succession of interesting and natural complications in which the young couple of experimental newlyweds find themselves inextricably involved.

In general tenor, "Double Harness" may be rather definitely catalogued as a play belonging in the same category as "Cynara" and "The Animal Kingdom."

It is in this sort of thing that Ann Harding and William Powell find their real metier. Each plays with an intelligent and altogether admirable repression. There are times when it would be very easy for either one, or both of them to rant and roar and tear the hair, but neither ever does.

The entire cast, as a matter of fact, comports itself after the manner of ladies and gentlemen, thus contriving to make "Double Harness" sophisticated and literate entertainment worthy of the attention of any discriminating advocate of a sane, subdued and sapient cinema. In it you will find Miss Harding back again near the top.

"Storm at Daybreak" is fare of another flavor.

Colorful, fast moving, melodramatic and lavishly emotional, this romance of the Serbs and the Hungarians at the outbreak of the Great War paints a flambouyant canvas in vivid and sweeping strokes.

It is a drama of clashing wills, loves and armed forces, with a familiar domestic triangle occupying its accustomed conspicuous place in the foreground of events that are touched off by the assassin's bullet at Sarajevo on that tragic July day in 1914.

In many of its major movements it is possible to trace a distinct analogy between "Storm at Daybreak" and many of our own best-known dramas of the Civil War—"Secret Service," "Cumberland '61," "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and even "Arizona" are blood cousins of this play of warring peoples strangely close under the trappings of opposing armies.

Supplant the odd costumes of central Europe with our own Blue and Gray and you might almost believe a William Gillette or an Augustus Thomas had written "Storm at Daybreak" instead of Sandor Hunyady, from whose play of "Black-Stemmed Cherries" it was adapted.

In his direction, Boleslavsky has let himself go on the side of vigorous action and cyclonic climax. Many of his liveliest scenes are notable for the richness of their musical background. If the play has a weakness, it lies in the forced character of its comedy, which, as often as not, is dragged in almost literally by the heels.

However, there is scant profit in carping at the minor aspects of a drama that affords lusty occuptions for such a group of players as Kay Francis, Walter Huston, Nils Aster, Louise Closser Hale, Eugene Pallette, C. Henry Gordon, Phillips Holmes and Jean Parker.

"Storm at Daybreak" is something you will want to see.

All this, of course, is not at all to say that these two are the only pictures that will be in town next week. They merely are the only two that have been seen in advance by the ladies and gentlemen of the death watch. Mae West, in "She Done Him Wrong," to return to view at the Metropolitan, is a known quantity. Much the same can be said of Jimmy Cagney, in whatever role he chooses to assume. That of "Mayor of Hell," to be at the Earle, should be at least a mild stimulus to curiosity. Preston Foster and his associates should inspire a like investigative turn of mind in "The Man Who Dared," at the Fox.

Speaking of Loew's Fox—and that is the one of which we WERE speaking—business was given an impetus yesterday, and the large audiences moved to salvos of applause by the first local appearance of the Men's Glee Club and Orchestra from the University of Illinois, which inaugurated a belated three-day engagement as an added feature of the already well-balanced program of stage acts.

This group of 26 vocalists under the conductorship of Raymond F. Dvorak, offered a variegated program of songs, ranging from a tricky Russian number, the most applauded of them all, to a medley of oldtime melodies and Tom McNaughton's time-honored recitative, with orchestral trimmings, "Three Trees."

What the act lacks in the smooth polish that comes from long stage experience, it more than makes up by the enthusiasm it displays in its work and the extraordinary precision of both tone and tempo with which Mr. Dvorak has imbued his charges.

Especially effective were his direction of the "Student Prince" numbers, sung as a medley, and the "Gloria Patri," brought down from the Fifteenth Century and sung with antiphonal chorus in most artistic manner.

The only fault yesterday's audience seemed to find with the Glee Club was that it held the stage for altogether too short a time.

A pleasant chat yesterday afternoon with Mr. Melvin D. Hildreth, attorney-at-law and Washington's encyclopedic authority on circuses, brought to light, among many other interesting things, that the Capital has not seen the last of the season's tent shows just because the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey "Greatest Show on Earth" has come and gone and that midget has sat upon the knee of the Colossus of Wall street, Mr. J. P. Morgan.

It seems that the less pretentious, but scarcely less typically amusing, circus that has been operated up and down the land for generation upon generation by the Hunt Family is headed this way and probably in August will repeat last year's successful tour of neighborhoods and communities completely encircling the National Capital and the District of Columbia.

This will be particularly good news to the youngsters in the District's eleemosynary institutions, all of whom were guests of The Post at the Hunt show last season and probably will be again this.

And not only that. Mr. Hildreth further confides that the outlook is at the moment rosy for a visit to Washington of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus during the early days of next month. This booking, however, I believe has not as yet been definitely confirmed.

It was the great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, since the matter is up, that revived the "great free street pageant"—circus parade, to youse water to the elephants carrier uppers—in Chicago in April of this year, according to an item dropped on my desk by Bob Heinl, and has aroused a tremendous response by this revival of an ancient custom wherever it has been tried. This is a matter we shall have to take up with Mr. Hildreth, even if the depression is only now getting around to Washington.

Chevy Chase Lake has stepped out among the "bigger and better" hot night spots these past few days with the engagement of Johnny Brown's White Fleet Orchestra, direct from important engagements in Atlantic City and with the recording people. Johnny's engagement was brief, but significant in that it may be construed as merely a foretaste of many another special attraction to be brought in by Eddie Carr, former film man, under whose management the lake resort has taken on new spirit—3.2, to be concise about it!

Harking back to the U. of Illinois Glee Club—the next best thing to harking to them—their appearance is strikingly reminiscent of Waring's Pennsylvanians. They go in for the white pea jackets and black trousers that was the uniform of the Waring crew the last time they were here. And the time before that, too, come to think of it.

Brand new idea in gentlemen's toggery, this mess jecket ensemble. I don't recall it any longer than 30 years ago, when, as a mere lad of 60, I moved to the tropics to while away a few years wishing it would snow!

But that's another tail!

Stars Who Find Congenial Roles in New Screen Play

Ann Harding and William Powell, who will demonstrate at RKO-Keith's Theater, beginning Friday, by what subtle means a frisky young colt can be broken to "Double Harness." In this subject these talented players contribute highly intelligent and believable performances to a highly intelligent and believable domestic drama, written by Edward Poor Montgomery, a former resident of the Capital.

Culbertson's Bridge

Reaching the Correct Contract.

REACHING the correct contract in Contract Bridge is generally speaking, a matter of giving and receiving information. Players who love to preempt on hands in which the proper Opening is an Approach bid and who love to force on hands where simple Takeouts are in order find that with tremendous frequency they reach unmakable contracts and play the hand in the wrong suit or play it in a suit when it should be played in notrump.

So well understood today are the correct principles of bidding that there is really very little excuse for partners going wrong in the process of exchanging information and only in cases where they encounter very unfavorable distribution should large penalties follow any tested partnership bidding.

An interesting example of a splendid exchange of partnership inferences occurred in a recent Duplicate game on the hand below:

West, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ J 5 4 3 2
♡ J 4
◇ 6 4 3
♣ J 3 4

♠ A Q 10 6 — ♠ K 9 8 7
♡ A K 10 — ♡ Q 9 3 2
◇ K Q 10 9 — ◇ A J 8
♣ Q 10 — ♣ K 2

♡ 8 7 6 5
◇ 7 5 2
♣ A 9 7 6 5 3

The bidding:
(Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West	North	East	South
1♠(1)	Pass	2NT(2)	Pass
3◇(3)	Pass	3♠(4)	Pass
4NT(5)	Pass	5◇(6)	Pass
6NT(7)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West's hand is almost strong enough for an Opening Forcing bid of two, but the distribution suggests strongly the wisdom of making an Approach bid in preference.
2—East has two alternatives, either a bid of three spades or the one actually chosen—namely, two notrump. Considering the fairly balanced nature of his hand the two notrump response, which, while not Forcing, is very strong, appears the better.
3—There is no occasion for West to force in this position. East's first response to his Opening call assures him that when he shows added strength by bidding a new suit a game contract at least will be reached.
4—East also knows that there will be further bidding, and while he could now bid four spades he purposely underbids in order to gain further information.
5—West's hand certainly justifies this bid, which shows two Aces and the King of a bid suit. West knows now that there is a fit in spades and that a contract of five in one suit or the other would be reasonably safe.
6—East now shows that he can also support the diamond bid by his partner.
7—West knows that East must hold either the King or Ace of clubs to have justification for the two notrump call. The bid of six notrump rather than six in a suit is perfectly correct based on the distribution and on the further fact that the hand was played in a Duplicate game scored on the match-point basis.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South is playing a contract of four hearts. West's Opening lead is the diamond Ten, which is won in the closed hand with the King. If South now returns the club 7, what card should West play, and why?

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Widow Is Held In Kansas City Massacre of 5

Federal Agents Charge She Started Plot to Free Husband.

Kansas City, July 11 (A.P.).—The widow of Convict Frank Nash, believed by authorities to have been instrumental in setting in motion the delivery plot that resulted in his death and four officers in a hail of machine gun fire here June 17, surrendered today to Federal agents.

It was announced she would be charged with obstructing justice, the same technical charge on which Herbert Farmer, former convict of Joplin, Mo., and his wife are being held.

Secrecy surrounded the arrest of Mrs. Nash and the questioning of the woman by operatives of the United States Bureau of Investigation.

It was said she came here voluntarily from Wenona, Ill.

Federal authorities allege that Mrs. Nash notified members of her husband's gang immediately after his arrest in Hot Springs, Ark., on June 16, and made an airplane flight with her 7-year-old daughter and an unnamed man to Joplin, Mo., where she went to the home of Farmer.

From Farmer's home officers traced telephone calls to the residence in Kansas City, of Verne C. Miller, former convict and former sheriff at Huron, S. Dak., who is alleged to have wielded one of the machine guns in the Union Station Plaza here, in the daring attempt to free Nash. Miller is a fugitive, one of seven or eight persons being sought.

Before the airplane flight to Joplin, Mrs. Nash is alleged to have telephoned from Hot Springs to Farmer's Joplin home, using the name, Mrs. E. B. Conners.

Nash, convicted train robber, was being returned to Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary from which he escaped in 1930, when his gangster friends opened fire on the group of officers.

Parade to Start Fete Of Southeast Church

A street parade will open the annual carnival of St. Francis Xavier Church next Friday. The affair will continue through July 22 on the church grounds, Twenty-seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

The parade will start at 6:30 p. m. Bands and floats will be included in the line of march. Attractions for young and old will feature the program of events. Proceeds from the carnival will go to the building fund for the new church.

Washington Boy's Body Recovered

The body of Arthur Ellsworth McCoy, 17, of 1320 Eleventh street northwest, one of two Washington hitch-hikers drowned last week in the Ohio River, was recovered yesterday by searchers, according to an Associated Press report from Ironton, Ohio.

In company with Edward Nightengall, jr., 15, of 1743 F street northwest, McCoy was en route to Alaska on a hitch-hiking vacation trip. First word of the tragedy reached here Saturday when Mrs. Louise Remund, of the F street address, was notified that the body of Nightengall, her grandson, was found floating on the Ohio River.

McCoy was missing for several days. His body was identified yesterday by his father, A. E. McCoy. The Nightengall youth had lived here with his grandmother since he was 3 years old. The boys had been friends for many years, it was learned.

American 3.2 Is Welcomed By Embassies

U. S. Brew Proves Popular After Foreign Stocks Are Exhausted.

If you are a perspiring guest at an embassy and a tray of formidable, frosty steins is placed graciously before you, don't be tactless and inquire:

Chances are that the brew is straight American 3.2.

Since beer was legalized by Congress, there has been quite a turn among the Diplomatic Corps to serving it. As the comparatively meager proportion of beer in the liquor shipments from abroad was soon exhausted, the envoys put in stocks of American product. Except for the Germans, Austrians, Czechoslovaks, Scandinavians and Dutch, beer is regarded by the remainder of the foreign colony as unimportant.

But recently, on hot days, it has been found a welcome offering to guests.

Abner-Drury Brewery, Inc., report deliveries to five embassies and several legations, with repeat orders. St. Louis and Milwaukee beer also has made its appearance on upper Sixteenth street and Massachusetts avenue.

With the bottom of the ambassadorial cellars becoming visible, the summer stock of lighter wines and liquors disappearing, preparations are under way for autumn and winter beverages from their native lands.

The Latin envoys still cling to wines as their favorite drink with meals and refreshments. And, each is proud of the superiority of the wine of his country. Also, just as proud of their individual brews are the Scandinavians and central Europeans.

Nats' Lead Shrinks to 2 Games as Chisox Pound Out 9 to 3 Win

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

ONLY the pink elephants were missing when the Nats took the field at the start of the game yesterday. There was the spectacle out there of Walter Stewart at second base and Earl Whitehill in right field. No foolin'. Manager Cronin had three pitchers in the game in assorted positions.

The customers were beginning to wonder what they are putting in the three point two these days. But there was no doubt about the Nats' second baseman being Stewart. And Whitehill was certainly in right field. It all might have looked cockeyed, but it was true.

And then Cronin's strategy dropped down on the unsuspecting assembly like the proverbial ton of bricks. Before Al Crowder had time to pitch the first ball, Cronin waved Stewart and Whitehill to the bench and sent Boken and Harris on to the field. He wasn't going through with it.

They Were Only Fooling.

Stewart and Whitehill were just a couple of precautionary measures yesterday. Perhaps they've been called everything but that before. Anyway, they were simply ghosting for the regulars until Cronin found out who was going to pitch for the White Sox.

Manager Fonseca had his southpaw, Walter Stewart, warming up before the game and Cronin had planned to send a right-handed hitting line-up into the battle. But he wasn't taking any chances on Fonseca switching to a right-handed pitcher. Joe Heving, a right-hander, had taken a turn in batting practice, and Cronin saw in that maneuver a possible last-minute change.

Both managers submit their line-ups to the umpire at the plate at the same time. Had Cronin submitted his right-handed hitters and then discovered that the Sox had nominated a right-handed pitcher, he would have been forced to change his line-up and leave the Nats in a hole, without the use of his right-handers for pinch-hitting duty, for once a player's name is submitted, he is ruled in the game.

Of course, Cronin's strategy was useless in view of what happened to the Nats, but it did serve to recall the trick of Bucky Harris in that memorable last game of the 1924 world series against the Giants.

On that occasion, Harris started a right-hander, Curly Ogden. McGraw had seen Ogden warm up and started a line-up of left-handed hitters. Ogden pitched to two batters, struck out one, walked another and Bucky Harris let him off for the day.

Harris called in the left-handed Mogridge to face the Giants. McGraw was forced to revise his line-up and send in his right-handed hitters. And when Harris sent in Marberry and Johnson to finish up the game, the Giants were without the use of any left-handed sluggers for pinch-hitting duties.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

If Cronin wanted to go through with Stewart as his second baseman, he might have made a worse choice . . . the ball players will tell you that there isn't a better fielding pitcher than Stewart . . . Young Billy Sullivan has been benched by Manager Fonseca . . . He refuses to catch and the Sox had been using him at first base . . . his low batting average wouldn't be so bad if he wasn't fielding at about the same figure . . . Simmons wears the longest sleeves in the league . . . he doesn't smoke and can't stand those who do . . . they couldn't get Evar Swanson out legitimately yesterday . . . he had two singles, a double, a triple and a sacrifice bunt . . . Heinie Manush had one hit in his last 11 times at bat . . . the Sox don't look like the same club the Nats beat four straight in Chicago.

Yanks Down Browns on Homers, 5-4

Gomez, in Relief Role, Halts Rally and Saves Game in Ninth.

Walker and Lazzeri Hit for Circuit; Attack on Hebert Decisive.

NEW YORK, July 11 (A.P.).—The Yankees got off to an early lead against Wally Hebert today and defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4, in the series opener despite the fine relief pitching of Hank McDonald.

McDonald gave only one hit in 3 1-3 innings, but that was Tony Lazzeri's fifteenth homer of the season and the winning blow as Danny MacFayden was driven to cover in the eighth and Lefty Gomez barely held the margin.

Dixie Walker also hit a homer while Bruce Campbell socked his fifteenth for the Browns with one on in the third and drove in another run with a single in the ninth.

The victory left the Yankees only two games behind the Washington Senators, putting them a game closer to the defeated league leaders.

Braves Win 4th in Row; Zachary Beats Pirates

Pittsburgh, July 11 (A.P.).—Behind old Tom Zachary's tight hurling, the Boston Braves today won their fourth straight game, trouncing the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 3.

Zachary held the Buccaneers to eight well-scattered hits and had them shut out until the sixth inning, when Swift's single, Paul Waner's double and Traynor's single accounted for two tallies.

The Braves, who have now won 12 out of their last 16 frays, scored a run each in the first, third and fourth innings, and got two more in the eighth on Jordan's double, Moore's triple and a fly by Whitney.

Tigers Nosed Out, 2-1, In Duel With Red Sox

Boston, July 11 (A.P.).—the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers pitchers hooked up in an old-fashioned pitching duel today with Bob Weiland, of the Sox, gaining a 2 to 1 decision over Vic Frasier, of the Tigers.

Frazier allowed but five hits, including two doubles, while Weiland was knicked for six blows including a triple and double, both by Fox. Each allowed three bases on balls and Frasier fanned three while Weiland was whiffing six.

Boston won the game in the fourth inning, when Bill Walters, recruit third baseman from the West Coast, walked and scored on Cooke's double. Cooke took third on the throw home and crossed the plate on Jolley's infield out to Greenberg.

Australian Net Team Choice in England

Davis Cup Odds of 5-4 for Match Thursday Tribute to Crawford.

LONDON, July 11 (U.P.).—Still excited over Wimbledon's fortnight of thrills, English tennis fans today looked forward to the most exciting European zone Davis Cup final in years, which will be started Thursday between the forces of England and Australia.

Australia, which hasn't been a force in international tennis since the days of Brookes and Patterson, tonight ruled a 5-to-4 favorite to gain the interzone final and meet the United States for the right to engage France in the challenge round. The odds were a tribute to Jack Crawford, Australia's No. 1 man and conqueror last week of Ellsworth Vines in the all-England finals at Wimbledon.

See Two Wins for Crawford.

Experts expect Crawford to win both his singles matches against Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin and Frederick J. Perry. Don Turnbull, the youngster who will play No. 2 singles for Australia, is given little chance to win either of his contests.

Thus, if the singles play turns as expected, the outcome will rest squarely on the one doubles match. Because of this the Australian captain, some time before Thursday, must make a decision of great importance. He must decide whether to save Crawford's strength solely for singles, meantime hoping that Turnbull will win one match, thus using a fresh team for doubles, or to give Crawford an iron-man assignment of playing in both singles and doubles.

Many critics were of the opinion tonight that Crawford would double in brass, teaming with Adrian Quist in the doubles. Others thought it likely that Turnbull would be put in with Quist. Still others believed that Quist and Vivian McGrath, who uses the two-handed backhand, would handle the doubles assignment.

British Team Uncertain.

England is not definitely set on its double team. Perry and George Patrick Hughes are considered the most likely candidates, but there is a strong possibility that Hughes will have H. G. N. Lee as a partner.

Despite the almost unanimity of expert opinion that Crawford will score 2 points in singles, the rank and file of English fandom refuse to concede the Australian a clean sweep. They know too well Austin's ability to rise to the occasion when the stakes are high. Perry also is the sort who lifts his game in cup play.

The competition is expected to break all Wimbledon attendance records, which, incidentally, were established last week. More than 30,000 people watched the final between Crawford and Vines, and many of the spectators waited in line all night to gain standing room near the center court for the next day's contest between Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Dorothy Round.

Phils Defeat Reds In 11th; Quit Cellar

Hurst Scores Following Triple to Decide Game; Hansen Hurls Well.

Cincinnati, July 11.—Don Hurst tripped in the eleventh inning today and later scored to give the Philadelphia Nationals a 2-to-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. It was a battle for last place in the league and, by winning it, the Phils moved out of the cellar and the Reds dropped into it.

Hanson went the route for the Phils, holding the enemy to five hits. The fifth was the only scoring inning except the eleventh when the Phils won. The latter tallied as a result of Klein's double and Hurst's single, while Moore's single drove home Lombardi, of the Reds, who had doubled.

Macks Win Opener From Cleveland, 6-4

Give Mahaffey 3-Run Lead in First Inning as Foxx, Bishop Lead Attack.

Philadelphia, July 11 (A.P.).—Scoring three runs in the first inning, the Athletics went on to win 6 to 4, today in the opening contest of a four-game series with the Cleveland Indians.

Roy Mahaffey went the distance for the Athletics and while he issued seven passes he managed to keep the Indians' nine hits scattered enough to stave off their threats to rally. Jimmy Foxx kept well up in the running for the batting lead with three singles in four chances. He and Bishop, whose double was the only extra base hit of the game, got six of the A's ten hits.

Giants Fumble Cards Into Victory

4 Errors Give St. Louis 2-1 Victory Without Use of One Hit.

ST. LOUIS, July 11 (A.P.).—The New York Giants reached a climax in their exhibitions of poor fielding today and the Cardinals took advantage of this weakness to defeat the league leaders, 2 to 1, and draw up 2½ games behind first place.

The Giants made four of their five misplays in a row in the seventh inning to give the Cards both their runs without a hit. Roy (Bud) Parmelee pitched a great game, giving only six hits in a struggle with Dizzy Dean, and deserved a victory.

Travis Jackson, who has been playing shortstop for New York since Blondy Ryan suffered a spike wound, again was the "goat" for most of the poor fielding. Hampered by an injured and swollen knee, he made one boot in the first inning and started the streak of four with another in the seventh.

Jackson's Fumble Starts.

Jackson fumbled Ernie Orsatti's grounder to start the spree and the runner reached first. Jimmy Wilson bunted and Parmelee threw wild to second. Pat Crawford batted for Leo Durocher and rolled a grounder down past first. This time Manager Bill Terry fumbled, Orsatti scored and Wilson ran to third. Dean missed an attempt to bunt and when Catcher Gus Mancuso made a low throw to third, trying to pick Wilson off, the ball got past Vergez and Wilson tallied.

These two runs were the first the Cards had scored against New York in 37 innings. But it took some hard work by Dean in the ninth inning to make them good for a victory. "Dizzy," who pitched a whole game Saturday and a couple of innings Sunday, faltered toward the finish after he had given only five hits in the first seven innings. After retiring Jackson on strikes, Mancuso, Pinch Hitter Byrne James and Joe Moore found him for singles and the Giant run.

Bright Shadow Lands Spectacular Duel From Spartan Lady at Arlington Park

Pays Better Than 4-1; At Top Is Third in Feature.

Jack Mayer, Novice, Is Riding Hero With 3 Latonia Winners.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, July 11 (A.P.).—The Audley Farm's Bright Shadow scored in the Winnetka Purse, the top race today at Arlington, in a spectacular neck finish with Spartan Lady. At Top finished third in the 7-furlong event.

Jockey R. Jones had to whip and boot Bright Shadow to offstand the challenge of her rivals.

Bright Shadow and Miss Bunting set a sizzling pace until the stretch turn was reached, where Miss Bunting gave up the chase. Bright Shadow forged to the front and won by a narrow margin.

The winner ran the distance in 1:25 2-5, paying $11.64 to win in the $2 mutuels.

Mayer Wins Three at Latonia.

Latonia, Ky., July 11 (A.P.).—Its an old turf axiom that jockeys are born, not made, but the fallacy of the contention is being borne out here daily as the riding school of Roscoe Goose continues to ride the waves of success.

Goose, a star reinsman himself two decades back, but now a trainer, developed such outstanding riders as Charley Kurtsinger, the late Eugene James and Gilbert Elston, all within the span of a few years, and his latest protege, Jack Mayer, is supplying the spice of the present Millidale meeting.

Mayer, a nephew of the assistant Commonwealth attorney of Louisville, made his debut at Churchill Downs and today is the riding sensation of the Kentucky colony. The precocious youngster scored a triple today in early races to open up a long lead on his rivals for riding honors at the meeting.

Mayer scored his first success astride John Marsch's Camp Boss in the opening dash. He had no mount in the second, but booted H. P. Headley's Cabouse home in the third. Again he remained in the jockeys' room in the fourth, but came right back in the fifth to score his third successs in as many acceptances with Serenal Stock Farm's Running Water.

Today's feature, the Lyric Purse, at 6 furlongs, resulted in a handy score for the Le Mar Stock Farm's Misguide, a recent arrival, to win by a length from H. Russell's Sky Haven, with E. R. Bradley's Blessed Event third. The winner was favorite in the mutuels, paying $5.62 for a $2 ticket.

Flying Hour Empire Victor.

Empire City Race Track, New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Flying Hour, the fast daughter of Galetian, which won four straight purses before being stopped by such good ones as Good Advice and Balios in her last appearance, started another winning campaign here today. The 3-year-old representative of Mrs. W. M. Jeffords outran some speedy sprinters in the Briarcliff Purse of about 6 furlongs to give form players their third victory in a row. Pair of C. V. Whitneyites, Clotho and Fretwork, followed the winner home, Flying Hour scoring by a length. Clotho was second by six lengths. The favorite was a 1-to-2 shot, and her time was 1:09 3-5.

Don Meade had a simple task guiding the winner home. The pink and yellow silks flashed to the front before the field had gone many yards and Meade sat still and saved ground while his mount ate up the ground. Clotho always was closest in pursuit, but he could not match the pacemaker's speed. Meade did not have to ask his charge for her best through the last furlong. Clotho was easily next best, Fretwork tiring and only saving the show from Rip Van Winkle by a half length. Star Fire never could reach contention.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

RICHARD I, called the Lion-Hearted, was betrothed to Alais, sister of Philip Augustus, in 1160, when Richard was but three years old. When he became king, succeeding his father in 1189, he refused to keep the contract.

Richard, whose career is marked by many strange true events, joined with his brothers when he was but 16 in a revolt against their father. A few years later he engaged in a war against his elder brother, Henry—this time with his father joining with him.

After the death of King Henry, Richard ascended the throne only to leave his country a short time later for a crusade to the Holy Lands. On his homeward trip he was taken prisoner by Leopold of Austria and held for 150,000 marks ransom. The then valuation of the mark brought this amount to a true "king's ransom"—although in terms of the post-inflation mark of Germany the sum seems ridiculously low; less than a silver dollar. Eventually part of the ransom was paid and Richard was released. He turned the affairs of government over to Hubert Walter and devoted himself to his interests on the continent.

All in all, Richard spent about nine years of his 10-year reign outside of his own country.

Among Miss Magden's contest trophies are those for winning eight whistling contests, three bathing beauty contests, four beautiful leg contests, one beautiful face contest, one long hair contest, two beautiful back contests, one horsemanship contest. She has also been queen of one National Orange Show and four flower shows.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

At the Post . . .

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, JULY 11.

Things perked up today from a Bennings angle. I had two winners in White Legs and Bright Shadow and for a while it looked like we were going to cash that Audley Farm parlay. Royal Blunder, after running a powerful race, just couldn't make the grade. It was just a case of too much Westrope. And how they love that boy out here! Mike was strutting around the hotel lobby tonight. You know he picked Bright Beauty and Spotpot and had Imelda second at a $14 mutuel. For tomorrow, he likes Canon Law, Ever Fair, Butter Beans, Amscray, Wedding Ring, Marcasite. Be seein' ya. BILL.

FIRST RACE—YTFIN appears here in a maiden race for 2-year-olds, and I'm taking the word of the clockers that this filly is worth a bet. Has been well played on several occasions. FLABBERGAST and CROTALA for the rest.

SECOND RACE—LAMPBLACK appears as solid as anything appearing in this test. Personally, I don't like the race. HELIOS looks like the one to beat. BRAVE AND BOLD could take care of the third money with a good effort.

THIRD RACE—BORDER KING must run back to that New York race to take this, and I understand that such is expected by his handlers. Has two tough ones to take care of, however, in POSTSCRIPT and DON MANUEL.

FOURTH RACE—I'm going to take the speedy BUSH HOUR in this. This one is at tops and, although looked upon as a short sprinter, may stick it out tomorrow. SWIVEL and SARADA are the same capable performers of last year, but may want more route.

FIFTH RACE—BIG BEAU is sharp as a tack and ready to defeat a field of this caliber. Meets some worthy opposition in SNAPBACK and MR. JOE. The last named might be the sleeper here.

SIXTH RACE—REHOBOTH, the horse that is always a bridesmaid and seldom a bride, gets the Bennings call. I liked the sprinting of this one the other day, and tomorrow may be the wake-up. POLYDORUS and HELIANTHUS to complete the money picture.

SEVENTH RACE — TICKORY TOCK is a standout here, but from where I sit ANNIMESSIC is the one to beat. ISLAM for the show end.

EIGHTH RACE—HELEN BAB threw me down the other day, but I'm a glutton for punishment. Right back on her tomorrow. LERACK and CHAT EAGLE for the rest.

Kid Leonard Winner

Chicago, July 11 (A.P.).—Kid Leonard, 158, East Moline, won an eight-round decision over Andi di Vodi, of New York, 152, in the main bout of a fight program at the Western Stadium here tonight. Leonard pressed the fight all the way.

Track Absolves Plucky Play's Trainer

Poor Race of Heavy Choice Laid to Fever and Long Retirement.

CHICAGO, July 11 (A.P.).—Stewards of the Arlington Park Jockey Club today absolved E. L. (Woody) Fitzgerald, trainer for the Northway Stable, of all blame for the poor showing by Plucky Play, one of the outstanding handicap stars of the American turf, in a mile race yesterday.

Plucky Play, known as the "giant killer" because of his startling victories over Sun Beau and Equipoise, finished fifth in the race behind an ordinary field. He went to the post an odds-on favorite. Two days previous, however, Plucky Play, carrying 15 pounds more weight, ran a mile in victory in the same time as the winner made yesterday.

Retired for 11 Months.

Fitzgerald explained that Plucky Play had not raced in 11 months previous to Saturday's engagement, and that the thoroughbred was not at his best yesterday. The track veterinarian, making an examination of the horse, reported that Plucky Play was suffering from auto intoxication, and that he had a slight fever, which might have accounted for his sluggish performance.

Norman W. Church, millionaire Los Angeles sportsman, owner of Plucky Play, was greatly disappointed over the showing of the horse.

"I wouldn't have had it happen for $10,000," he said. "I want the public to have complete confidence in my stable. When any of my horses show disappointing efforts, it is not because they have not been properly fitted for their races. Plucky Play's race was disappointing to me, because he is to be retired to the stud, and I want his racing record to be as sparkling as possible."

Plucky Play will be entered in the Arlington Handicap, one of the major stakes of the Arlington meeting.

Vines Joins U. S. Team For Practice in Paris

Paris, July 11 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines joined his American Davis Cup teammates today and immediately engaged in a light practice session on the Roland Garros Stadium courts, in preparation for the interzone tennis matches with the survivor of the England-Australia series. This was Vines' first visit here this season.

Since the defeat of Vines by Jack Crawford, Australian champion, in the Wimbledon finals, optimism has been less pronounced in the American camp. All plans now are being concentrated in the interzone finals, which it is recognized will call for the best the United States can produce to win.

Old, New Style Wrestlers to Clash Here

Steinke to Tackle Steele Tomorrow in Feature of Stadium Show.

WITH Thor hammers, flying tackles, aerial tosses from the ring and plain and fancy grimmancing added to rassling, one would figure that a wrestler of the old school would have a hard time getting along. That this is far from being the case is indicated by the record hung up by Hans Steinke, the German strong man, who has been promoted from the movies.

Steinke boasts none of the newfangled tricks of the trade, but

Pro Golf Team of Walter and Gil Cunningham Wins From Amateur Stars

Pitt and Nee Are Beaten, 5 and 3

Pro Linkmen Win First Hole and Never Are Down in Match.

Gil Cunningham Shoots Subpar Round of 69 to Feature Match.

By Dave Herman.

IF you want to play the Cunningham brothers in golf, don't play them on their own battleground and expect to win.

Two of Washington's finest amateur sharpshooters, Harry Pitt, of Manor, and Maury Nee, of Columbia, resuming their exhibition crusade, yesterday discovered that Walter (Red) Cunningham, pro, and Gillie, his 21-year-old kid brother-assistant, know how to play their shots masterfully at treacherous old Burning Tree.

While Frank, the third of the brothers, stayed in the golf shop and rebuilt a few sticks, Walter and Gillie proceeded to give the two amateur stars a few lessons in the art of driving, approacning and putting.

Professionals Win, 5 and 3.

The professionals triumphed by 5 and 3 in a match that saw them get the jump by winning the first hole, and refuse to surrender the lead, despite a few threatening gestures.

To add insult to injury, the Cunninghams proved that they were expert medal as well as match players by completing the eighteen-hole journey in subpar fashion. The long-swatting Gillie, who was straight as a string all afternoon, blasted out a juicy 69 that clipped 3 strokes off par. His deep-chested brother shot a 71. Gillie's round was sensational. He sprinkled the greens with 5 birdies, and fired a blazing 33 on the stretch. Walter shot a 37-34. Together they scored a best ball of 35—31—66.

The amateurs were a trifle off color. Nee, who wound up with a 76, had difficulty controlling his second shots. Pitt, finishing with a 77, was afflicted with one of his wild driving spells.

Going to the eighth hole, the Cunninghams commanded a 4-up lead. Here Pitt rammed in a birdie two to slice down the advantage. The amateurs won back another hole when Nee bagged a birdie 4 on the ninth.

Gillie Features Last Nine.

Gillie's shooting featured play on the last nine. He chipped in from off green for a birdie 3 to win the twelfth, aided his brother in bagging the fourteenth, and as a parting shot clinched the match with a birdie on the fifteenth, running down a 10-footer for his 3.

Pitt and Nee will swing into action again this afternoon, meeting Fred McLeod and Billy Molloy at Columbia Country Club.

Mrs. Jerome Meyer basked in the spotlight in the ladies' day events at Woodmont yesterday. She won the approaching and putting contest, and took a special putting contest after being tied with Janice Loeb. Mrs. Theodore Peyser won the driving contest.

Monday has been set as the closing date for filing entries for the Maryland State amateur championship slated for June 19, 20, 21, 22 at Indian Spring. Entries should be sent to 16 McClelland place, Baltimore, Md. Indications are that several hundred from Baltimore and the District will participate. Practice rounds are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

fifth and came through with a lusty line-single to center.

Jack (Sonny Boy) Hayes scurried over toward first to rob Schulte of a hit in the fifth. He made a great stop and throw to first.

The sixth was the first round in which the Sox were held hitless. The honor went to "Prof." Weaver.

Buddy Myer also was benched in favor of the right-handed hitting Boken, but the latter did no hitting.

Dykes had an easy day of it at third for the aliens. He did not have a chance afield until the seventh.

Bluege slipped and fell while fielding Simmons' topped bounder in the eighth and it went as a hit. Swanson trotted over the plate from third on the play with the Sox's ninth run of the game.

Five U. S. Golfers Advance in Canada

Finger, Givan, Campbell, Baker and Dolp Enter Second Round.

Vancouver, July 11 (A.P.).—Five players from the United States and eleven from Canada survived the first round of match play in the Canadian amateur golf championship today.

Jack Finger, of San Francisco; Harry Givan and Albert (Scotty) Campbell, of Seattle, and Dr. Cliff Baker and Frank Dolp, of Portland, Oreg., all advanced into the second round but one of the United States' leading threats, Dr. O. F. Willing, former Walker Cup star, was eliminated.

Willing bowed to Cecil Coville, of Vancouver, 1 up, after a ding-dong battle in which the American was trailing most of the way.

Mike and Joe Iron Out Problems

7-Year-Old Sandlotter at First Big League Game, Singularly Honored.

UNTIL this week Mike Pappafotis, 7-year-old veteran of the sandlots, had never seen a big league baseball game. But now he has. Not only that, he has been initiated into the inner circle of the Washington Baseball Club and has had some of the finer points of the game explained to him by no less a personage than Manager Joe Cronin. Is Mike proud?

It all came about like this. Clark Griffith heard that there were a number of kids around the Boys Club who couldn't afford to go to ball games. He invited 100 of them to be his guests. Mike was one. Pappa Pappafotis is a fruit peddler, and fruit peddlers are sometimes lucky if they and their families don't have to subsist wholly on their own wares.

To say that Mike, who is an avid sandlot fan and player, was agog is putting it mildly. He was aghast! So much so, in fact, that he spent the first two innings getting accustomed to his surroundings, disregarding the baseball game almost entirely. By the third inning he was more at home, and by the ninth he had rooted his shrill soprano into a Bing Crosby barytone.

Mike enjoyed the game tremendously, but there were several things he still wanted to do. For one, he wanted to go into the Nats' dugout to meet the players. Restrictions are a little beyond the understanding of a 7-year-old mind, and Mike couldn't see any reason why he couldn't pay his heroes a social call. And besides, there were several rather puzzling things about the game that he wanted to discuss with his colleague, Joe Cronin. He knew darned well that as one baseball player to another Joe would be glad to help him iron out the difficulties.

After the game, an emissary was dispatched to the Nats' playing manager. The situation was explained to him. Would Joe care to help a contemporary? Mike was right. Joe would. So Mike Pappafotis was escorted down the runway to just outside the locker rooms, where he and Cronin conferred seriously about their mutual problems. After that, Mike was given a peak inside that holy of holies, the Nats' locker room, and he and the boss made a personal inspection tour of the baseball park.

Chevy Chase, leading the race, will meet Woodmont at 10 o'clock.

Veteran Petrolle to Test Van Klaveren's Ring Wares

Fargo Express, With Slowing Legs, Tackles Dutch Youth for Chance at McLarnin's Crown Later in Summer.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, July 11 (A.P.).—The "Old Man," as he liked to call himself, craggy-faced Billy Petrolle, bundles himself once more in his faded Indian blanket tomorrow night to come out for battle with another of those youngsters, who are always getting in his way. This time it's Bep Van Klaveren, of Holland, a very speedy, peppy young fellow, and the distance is 10 rounds at the Polo Grounds.

For years and years "Old Will" has been climbing ring steps, blinking under the lights, solemn-faced and unemotional, as a plumber come to fix a leak in the sink. Usually Will moves the young fellows around a little, gets them inposition, belts them when they least expect it, and then goes home again to Fargo, N. Dak., until it's time to put another young upstart in his place.

But lately things haven't been going so well. Age has been creeping up on the veteran who once trounced Jimmy McLarnin, the new welterweight king, as no other man ever has done. Barney Ross gave him a thorough going over in Chicago as a tune-up for the fight in which the young Chicagoan took the lightweight title from Tony Canzoneri. The old fellow's legs don't seem as spry as they used to be, but he still can pop the unwary with as fine a left hook as the modern lightweights ever saw or felt.

Van Klaveren seems ideally constituted to give Petrolle trouble. Former European lightweight champion, the Dutchman bounds around tirelessly on a pair of rubber legs Billy will envy. Bep doesn't hit very hard, but he punches fast and often, takes a thump well, and never stops going.

This is Van Klaveren's first big chance. His most prominent victories were scored over Baby Joe Gans and Eddie Ran, two good right-hand punchers, who could not nail what they could not catch. Bep was matched with Petrolle last summer, but hurt an arm or a leg or something when Billy started popping his coworkers over in his very best style.

The winner has been promised an outdoor title match here later this summer with McLarnin by Tim Mara, the professional football promoter who has leased the boxing privileges at both the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium, with active results. Van Klaveren is a slight favorite.

Cubs Score Six in 8th; Beat Dodgers

Mosolf and Babe Herman Get Big Hits in 6-to-2 Win; Cubs Now 3d.

CHICAGO, July 11 (A.P.).—Scoring all their runs in a wild eighth-inning outburst after Owen Carroll had held them to three hits in seven frames, the Cubs defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 2, today and extended their winning streak to six straight games.

By winning the Cubs moved ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to Boston, and into third place in the National League standing.

Charley Root went the route for the Cubs, giving seven hits and turning in his first starting game since June 14.

Mosolf Triples in Eighth.

Triples by Jim Mosolf and Babe Herman, the first coming after Mark Koenig had singled and Billy Herman had got on when Joe Stripp couldn't make a play on his liner, were the big blows of the eighth inning. Another hit, a pair of sacrifices and errors by Hollis Thurston, who replaced Carroll, and Sam Leslie, netted the rest of the Cubs' runs.

New York, July 11 (A.P.).—Charley Devens, youthful right-hander, who learned his pitching at Harvard, was recalled by the New York Yankees from their International League farm at Newark today. At the same time, the world champions returned portly Dan Brennan to the Bears.

Organizations Here Indorse Cup Race

Regatta September 28-30 to Draw Star Drivers; Groups Enthused.

WASHINGTONIANS will see one of the most powerful fleets of speedboats that ever churned the placid waters of the Potomac when the cannon booms its starting command for the President's Cup Regatta. The blue ribbon event of Eastern power-boat racing will be held off Hains Point three days, beginning September 28, and continuing the 29th and 30th.

Representatives of 28 leading civic and busines organizations met last night at the offices of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to further plans for the affair. John A. Remon, general chairman of the regatta committee predicted it would be the most attractive of all those scheduled for Eastern waters this summer.

Invitations have been extended all of the leading speedboat owners to participate in the three-day program. Indications point to a large entry list which will include the leading drivers and swiftest craft. Thousands of spectators have lined the seawall along East Potomac Park to view the races in previous years, the majority of them visitors to the city.

Leech Addresses Meeting.

L. Gordon Leech also addressed the meeting. Recently returned from regattas held at Lake Geneva and at Hampton, Va., Mr. Leech announced that he had received promise of entry from many prominent racers. Edward C. Baltz, commodore of the Chesapeake and Potomac Power Boat Association, and Dr. R. Lyman Sexton, commodore of the Corinthian Yacht Club, also spoke.

County Teams List Three Games Today

Three ball games are listed this afternoon on nearby Prince Georges County diamonds.

In the feature attraction Hyattsville All-Stars will meet the Northeast Market nine on the Riverdale field at 5 o'clock. It will be the first week-day contest in which the Hyattsville team has appeared this season. Andy Gleason, a newcomer, or Jimmy Campbell, former Hyattsville High School hurler, is slated to pitch for the All-Stars. Hyattsville has yet to lose a game this year, although it has tied a couple.

St. Jerome's Midget nine, of Hyattsville, will continue its ambitious schedule by engaging Clarendon Generals in a double-header at Magruder Park at 1 o'clock. The church team has bested the Virginians twice already this season, once in a 14-inning duel and again in a game stopped by rain in the sixth. Ray Fleshman and John Rogers will twirl for St. Jerome's.

St. Jerome's Midgets bowed to Colmar Manor, 6 to 5, yesterday in a close battle on the Mount Rainier diamond. Mishky Costow, winning pitcher, counted the deciding run in the eighth.

Harvey Shoots 68 At Indian Spring

Makes 5 Birdies for Best Score of Season on That Course.

Engaging in one of the famous "cut-throat" matches yesterday at Indian Spring, J. W. Harvey, jr., clicked off a subpar 68, the lowest score of his golf career and one of the best produced by any golfer on that course.

Harvey was in rare form as he shot each nine in 34, depositing 5 birdies along the way. Parker Nolan, also in the party, scored a subpar 70. Par for the course is 71. Others who played and saw Harvey give Old Man Par a sound thrashing were Dr. Larry Otell, club champion; Louis Fuchs, George Diffenbaugh, pro; Jack Pence and L. E. Flaherty.

G. O. P. Control Of Annapolis' Water Co. Won

Ballot Results Give Party Control of Its Board of Directors.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 11.—Not only were the Republicans successful in landing the two major posts in yesterday's municipal election by the reelection of Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt and Roscoe C. Rowe, city counselor, but the result means that management of affairs of the Annapolis Water Co., a football in local politics for many years, will continue in the hands of that party. This has been a thorn in the side of the Democrats for the last four years.

Under existing law governing the company, the mayor and counselor, automatically are members of the board of five directors, and the act also stipulates that a minority member of the council shall be named to the board. The Republicans are a minority in the council by four to six, and one of the two Negro aldermen from the Fourth Ward necessarily becomes a director.

At the last session of the Legislature, Democratic leaders were instrumental in adding another to the several changes in the law, the design being to strip the Republicans from some of the spoils of victory in municipal elections, such as has occurred, by placing the management more directly under jurisdiction of the council and appointed officials.

At the same time, Democrats also secured passage of an act to repeal the local election law, also a political move, in that it contained among other provisions, eliminating the counselor as an elective office. But the Republicans made an issue of the election law, and as a result the Court of Appeals finally declared it unconstitutional. The water law was so interlocked with the election measure, that it, too, was voided.

Seal Confirms Variations in Price of Milk

Will Tell Senate Probers About Discrimination Among Consumers.

Elwood H. Seal, special counsel of the Senate committee investigating Washington milk prices, yesterday confirmed the story uncovered by The Post of a woman who found that one of Washington's dairies sells milk at varying prices to its customers.

When the Senate hearing, which will not be scheduled until Senator McCarran returns to the Capital two weeks hence, convenes, Mr. Seal said, he will produce bills to show that some customers paid but 11 cents a quart for milk which the dairy regularly priced at 13 cents.

Other figures showing the drop in milk prices from 15 cents in the spring of 1931 to the present 13 cents was offset by a cut of 7 cents a gallon in the price paid the producers have been unearthed by the accountants working under the Senate committee's supervision.

Mr. Seal also revealed that on May 1 this year the two-class system of dividing milk bought from the producers was changed to three classes. Formerly there was the basic price and the surplus price, while now there are prices on basic, first and second class milk.

The second class milk is that from which the milk distributor takes cream, and the third class is the surplus, the price on which fluctuates. This new system of milk classification already has aroused complaints from producers, who charge discrimination, Mr. Seal said. These complaints have not been investigated.

Hot Days and Beer Boost City Income

June's record hot weather indirectly added to the District revenue this month, the tax assessor's office revealed yesterday in announcing that beer sales have exceeded by more than $3,000 receipts from May or April sales.

While all licensees had not been heard from, the tax assessor's office at the close of business yesterday had received 1,717 returns and the tax collector had $17,037.69 in beer taxes. May's tax was only $14,185.

An indefinite number of licensees are in danger of losing their permits if they sold beer in June and have not reported, but the tax assessor's office will not be able to determine how many are delinquent for several days.

Impostor Has Paint Firm Filling Phantom Orders

Police yesterday were asked to apprehend an impostor falsely using the name of Martin Brothers, contractors, of 1341 Connecticut avenue northwest. For two weeks he has been ordering paint delivered from the Butler-Flynn Paint Co., of 607 C street northwest, to a list of vacant houses.

Each time he placed an order the impostor left a telephone number as verification. More than $300 worth of paint has been delivered to the false addresses.

Potomac Gives Up Party Joker's Body

Man Who Tried to Rescue Employe After Dare Is Identified.

Police yesterday recovered the body of Charles Conway, 40, of Philadelphia, drowned as the result of his own practical joke during a gay boating party on the Potomac near Highway Bridge early Monday morning. The body was identified at the District morgue by relatives. A certificate of accidental death was issued by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Conway, a construction foreman on the new Governmental central heating plant here, drowned when he dove overboard to rescue Herbert J. Spain, of 2701 P street, whom he had commanded to jump overboard or lose his joo. Spain, who took Conway's joke literally, was saved by other members of the party who were unable to rescue Conway.

Rabbits Vie With Dogs and Goats at Pet Show

Post Staff Photos.

Takoma Park's Pet Show Wins Great Success

50 Creatures Proudly Exhibited for Prizes Do Their Best Tricks.

About 50 pets were entered in the fifth annual pet show at the Takoma Park Playground, Fourth and Whittier streets, yesterday afternoon. Everything from the scrawniest little featherless canary to big, lumbering police dogs had its part in the afternoon's entertainment.

Prizes were awarded to the best-trained, the most attractive and the most unusual pets. Hoop-jumping, sitting up, speaking, rolling over were among the tricks the well-trained animals did.

"Skippy," little white chow belonging to Patsy Donovan, 7, 528 Tuckerman street, won the prize for the best trained, which he accepted with little show of excitement, lying back in his little mistress' arms with half-closed eyes.

Tiny, a sharp-horned but friendly goat, owned by Robert and Jimmy Raymond, 11 and 7, respectively, 218 Vine street, Takoma Park, D. C., was awarded first prize as the most unusual pet entered. His two young masters had their hands full when the award was made to keep Tiny from eating the paper wrapping off his prize. There was little doubt as to whether or not he deserved the recognition as the most unusual pet when he finished swallowing two packages of cigarettes and a box of matches and looked about hungrily for any stray cigar stubs.

The most attractive prize went to Nancy and Scamper, twin Pekingese, belonging to 7-year-old Henry J. McDermott, jr., 818 Davis avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Toadstools

Four Groups Investigate Death of Child, 3, From Poison.

Four investigations were being made yesterday into the death of Joseph Calabong, 31year-old ward of the Board of Public Welfare, who died Monday from toadstool poisoning at Gallinger Hospital.

The boy was said to have eaten the toadstools while playing in the yard of his foster mother, Mrs. B. F. Hall, of Crome, Md.

After an investigation by the Metropolitan Homicide Squad and an inquest by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, the case was referred to Prince Georges County authorities, who are conducting an inquiry. The child welfare division of the Welfare Board and Agriculture Department experts also are investigating.

Man Found Hanged At St. Elizabeths

J. F. Callow Ends Life With Bed Sheet in Closet; Was Patient One Year.

The body of John F. Callow, 41, an inmate of the tubercular ward of St. Elizabeths Hospital, was found yesterday hanging from the end of a bed sheet tied in a linen closet.

The body was cut down by Dr. W. G. Cushard, of the hospital staff. A certificate of suicide was issued by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Callow, who had been in the institution more than a year, was a former locomotive engineer. He lived at 304 Fifteenth street southeast. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

Lorton Rioters Ordered to Pen

Wall Will Be Constructed Around Cell Block; Guard Remains.

Nearly 100 troublemakers at Lorton penal colony will go to Federal penitentiaries as the result of the near-insurrection at the District's model colony last week.

This was announced yesterday after a long session of the District penal committee. Department of Justice sanction for the move has been obtained.

Construction of a 15-foot wall around the solitary confinement cell block, to be begun shortly, was authorized by the committee yesterday.

The police guard remains in the prison confines, though reduced to 16 men. They will stay until the recalcitrants are removed.

Among the trouble ringleaders to be transferred to Federal prisons will be Bernie Fagen, former Washington policeman, who robbed the Plaza Hotel, and Peck Mahoney.

The walled-in inclosure will cover about 10 acres of the large prison tract. Funds that had been expected to be employed in new dormitory construction will be used for the new work, it was said.

Inside the new inclosure shops will be built by the inmates.

U. S. Personnel Cuts Adding to City Relief Job

New Cases Increase and Weeding of Less Deserving Is Forecast.

The Federal personnel retrenchment program threatens to overload the District's undernourished unemployment relief organization and probably will necessitate a weeding out of the less deserving cases.

This was revealed late yesterday by Leroy A. Halbert, director of emergency relief, following a conference with the special committee of the Board of Public Welfare in charge of unemployment aid.

New applications are mounting daily to new peaks, Mr. Halbert said, some 225 being registered yesterday and 180 the day before. An average of 100 new applicants have appeared daily since the beginning of the new fiscal year as against 50 to 75 previously.

An increase in the white collar destitute is noticeable among the new applicants, Mr. Halbert said. Many others are of the servant class who have suffered indirectly from the Federal retrenchments.

40,000 Getting Aid.

"We are faced with the necessity of cutting relief, although applications for help have increased, and it is physically impossible for our present force of workers to investigate thoroughly enough to prevent unwise relief, or to establish even a reasonable guarantee against impositions," he declared.

Because the relief division is 1,400 applications behind in investigating the new requests, the committee yesterday authorized the director to assign additional case workers to the new applications and to ease up on the weekly check of families already on the relief rolls.

Some 40,000 persons are now receiving aid from the relief division. Although the number on the June list was only 9,346, Mr. Halbert said, each of these represented an average of 4.3 persons to a family. This relief list has grown steadily during the spring and summer from 6,633 in March, to 7,152 in April, to 8,211 in May.

$54,000 Weekly Cost.

Direct relief expenditures since August 1, last year, have amounted to $1,283,078.98, of which $1,052,172.64, or 82 per cent, has been paid for made-work. Weekly expenditures have amounted to about $48,000 for direct relief plus administration expenses, which the last week of June brought the expenditures to $54,605.87.

Each family is averaging $20 a month, which Mr. Halbert admits is hardly a bare living scale for four persons. Even if the weekly relief scale is kept to this maximum, as seems unlikely in view of the mounting new applications, the District's fund will expire March 1, 1934.

Explaining why the emergency division has been swamped with new applications while anticipating a seasonal decline, Mr. Halbert said that the Associated Charities and other private relief agencies in June transferred almost their entire relief burden on the District because of an exhaustion of funds. A total of 213 cases were transferred.

Thousands Rejected.

The continuation of the depression, the Federal economy program and the slashing of veterans' pensions were cited as other reasons for the growing demands for District aid.

More than half of the 25,000 who have applied for relief have been rejected, and yet Mr. Halbert suggested that there are probably still undeserving cases on the rolls in the light of the District's meager funds.

"While the people get meager allowances and most of them work for what they get, it is probably true that quite a number of them, in the fear of absolutely depleting their resources and in their eagerness to preserve their status and their security, have been deceiving the social workers investigating them as to their eligibility for relief," he said.

These will be further investigated as soon as the relief division catches up on new applications and they will be weeded out as found.

Blanche Israel Expires in Hospital From Effects of 5-Story Jump.

Friends Watch Exhausted Girl Drown in Bay

Companions Make Frantic Efforts to Save Mary Ryan, 17.

Exhausted after swimming to a float some distance from shore, Miss Mary Ryan, 17-year-old graduate of Central High School, drowned yesterday in Chesapeake Bay off the beach at Herald Harbor.

With a girl companion, Miss Ryan dived into the choppy surf, and with steady strokes started for the float. A short distance out, witnesses reported, she appeared to weaken. Hardly had she reached the float when she apparently collapsed.

As her fingers slipped from a ladder beside the wooden platform, Miss Ryan sank beneath the surface. When she failed to reappear, several companions started a frantic search, which ended nearly an hour later when Billy Pitner, of Herald Harbor, recovered her body near the beach.

Miss Ryan, it was learned, went to the Chesapeake Bay resort several days ago for a brief vacation. With a number of girl friends she took a small cottage. Her death yesterday was witnessed by other members of the party.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ryan, of 420 Hamilton street northwest, Miss Ryan was graduated last February from Central High School. She was preparing for a career of teaching and was enrolled at the Wilson Normal School.

The body was brought to Washington last night. Miss Ryan is also survived by three brothers, John Francis Ryan, a Washington policeman; Joseph Ryan, a Central High School student, and Donald Ryan, all of whom live at the Hamilton street address.

G. P. O. Lobby Charge Answers Due Today

Formal replies to charges they solicited funds to circumvent the economy act are expected to be made today by Frank S. Lerch and James E. Rennie, employes of the Government Printing Office. Public Printer George H. Carter said last night that neither has answered him thus far. Lerch, an assistant foreman, and Rennie, a proofreader, were suspended last Thursday.

Lerch said he will reply separately from Rennie and expects complete vindication. He and Rennie are accused of helping finance a Congress lobby to restore $954,000 in earned leave, which G. P. O. employes lost through economy legislation.
